FATHER ADMITS HE KILLED TWO GIRLS
FOUND IN RIVERConfession Follows 3-Hour
Grilling of Tony Dinello, Who Lives in Shack at Kansas City, Kan.IDENTIFICATION OF BODY BY SISTERAccused Man Showed No Signs of Emotion When He Had Previously Viewed Remains.

KANSAS CITY, Mo., Sept. 12.—Tony Dinello, 47 years old, who lives in a shack on Kaw Point in Kansas City, Kan., at noon today confessed to the murder of two missing girls, and thrown their bodies into the Missouri River, the police of Kansas City, Kan., announced. The father of the girls, Henry L. Dinello, Chief of Police of Kansas City, Kan., and several detectives, after a three-hour grilling, identified the bodies of the two little girls, found Sept. 4 in the Missouri River at Shesha, the other Sunday night, Dinello, his son, Joe, 8, identified yesterday as those of the girls, 11 years old, and Hel-Dinello, 14. For two weeks they had been missing from home.

The missing girls, declared last night that father, Julia, about 20, had disappeared from the little shack on Kaw Point, three years ago.

As a red sunset lighted the Mackinac Cemetery, near Lexington, Mo., last night, Dinello, his son, Joe, 8, and several detectives from the two Kansas City, Kan., saw the body of the second girl, found Sept. 4, in the Missouri River.

"This is not my baby," Dinello cried, as the body was opened.

"The hands and the hair, Joe exclaimed, 'are like my sister's'."

After a grilling in Lexington an hour later, Dinello, confronted by the body of the first girl, which was removed from the body, a fragment of her hair, was bluntly asked if it was the body of his children.

"I made no identification," he said in a strained voice. "I would not want to do such a thing," he said.

The bar pin is like Helen's," the boy said. "And I have seen her in the body of the first girl."

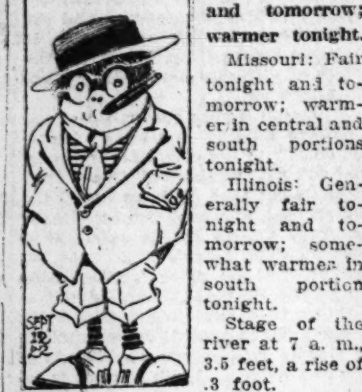

The body of the first girl was identified yesterday by its clothing, a blue dress and a poplin gimp, that of Flora Dinello.

Flora Dinello, 11, a daughter of the missing girls, identified the body as that of her sister's, she said through tears. "I have seen that dress myself."

Dinello, when he viewed the body of the first girl, where for the first time that he saw the body of his daughter, he said in a strained voice: "I can't say whether it is that of my daughter or not. The forehead is like my wife's."

When he beheld the second girl, who had been missing from home since Sept. 11, he went into hysterics.

Dinello, mother of Flora and the girl who have been missing from home since Sept. 11, went into hysterics when she viewed the body of the first girl.

INDICTED JOINTLYHead of Concern Dealing in Securities and Former Associate Charged With Embezzling $2,666.76.

D. Arthur Bowman of 4617 Westminster place and Herbert W. Cost of 5533 A Cabanne avenue, lately associated in the brokerage business as Bowman, Cost & Co., with offices in suite 702-04 Liberty Central Building, were indicted jointly by the grand jury today in a charge of embezzlement in the sum of $2,666.76.

From Established in 1912. The firm was established in 1912 as a partnership to deal in securities, by D. Arthur Bowman and Herbert W. Cost. Cost left the firm last September, and went to work for an insurance company. Bowman has conducted the business alone since that time, but the firm name has not been changed.

The indictment was based on a complaint by Dr. John C. Bram, superintendent of the Baptist Hospital, Garrison and Franklin avenues. He alleged that, in April, 1921, he purchased of Bowman, Cost & Co., bonds of the St. Louis Southwestern Railway, and that he got them at a price below par. In October, 1920, he returned the bonds for resale at the same price, which was to return a profit to him.

He alleges that in May, 1921, he learned that Bowman, Cost & Co. had previously sold his bonds for $7416.75 and had not made an account of the difference, he demanded his money or return of the bonds, he alleges is still due, and which he has been unable to collect.

Schweitzer sent for Bowman and Cost. It is alleged, and they are said to have acknowledged the obligation and promised to make full restitution if given a little time.

Payments were subsequently made in drainage bonds to Dr. Bram, leaving a balance of $2,666.76, which he alleges is still due, and which he has been unable to collect.

KID MCCOY'S NINTH ROMANCE DOESN'T GET AS FAR AS ALTAR

Prospective Bride Returns Home—Trouble Laid to Message From "Red Head."

By the Associated Press.
LOS ANGELES, Cal., Sept. 12.— Kid McCoy's ninth romance is wrecked and Mrs. Jacqueline Mc-Dowell, who came here from Baltimore with the announced purpose of becoming his partner for life, has returned to her home in the East. This is the statement of Kid McCoy himself, whose real name is written Norman Selby on the now useless marriage license which he and Mrs. Mc-Dowell obtained here several days ago.

A telegram from a feminine admirer who signed herself "Red Head," accidentally discovered in the prospective bride's pocket by her father, led to the discovery that she had delivered the knockout to the ex-pugilist's wedding plans.

HEARING DEFERRED
ON PLEA TO MODIFY
STRIKE INJUNCTIONAction Was Sought Pending Government's Effort to Show Purpose to Destroy Interstate Commerce.CORONADO DECISION
CITED BY THE COURTJudge Says Question Raised by Government's Allegation Is Vital and Should Be Settled First.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—Federal Judge Wilkerson today deferred hearing on the motion of attorneys for the leaders of the striking railroad shopmen for modification of the temporary restraining order, pending completion of the Government's effort to show that the dominant purpose of the alleged conspiracy is the destruction of interstate commerce.

Citing Supreme Court decisions in the Coronado coal case, Retail Lumber Dealers' case and the Patton colton corner prosecution, Judge Wilkerson said the question raised by the Government's allegation was a vital one and should be settled before the request for modification of the present order can be acted on.

In extending the temporary restraining order for 10 days, Judge Wilkerson did not attempt yesterday to pass on any merits of the contention of either Government or defense attorneys, beyond temporarily denying the defense motion to dismiss the proceedings.

Attorney-General Daugherty took no active part in the proceedings during the preliminary stage, but sat at the Government table surrounded by his aids, the heaviest battery of counsel the Government has ever thrown into a court action of this kind.

With the temporary order extended after he lost his motion to dismiss the entire proceedings, Donald
R. Richberg, attorney for B. M.
Jewell, head of the railway employers' department of the American Federation of Labor, and John Scott, secretary of the organization, served notice that his next move would be for prompt modification of the injunction.

Although the early part of the hearing was given over to Richberg for his attack on the Attorney-General and the injunction, the Government got in with some of its charges of murder, sabotage, terrorism and other forms of lawlessness.

A statement by the Attorney-General's staff discloses the nature of the Government's testimony and evidence.

"Since the commencement of the present railroad strike acts of depreda-tion have been committed in practically every State and judicial district of the United States," the statement said. "The efforts of the perpetrators have been concentrated upon two ends—destruction and intimidation.
The means to attain these ends are almost indescribable. In fact, one must believe that anything suggesting to the imagination of the vandals or their conspirators was immediately put into effect."

The statement enumerates reports of 25 murders and other fatalities attributed to strike causes. It also pointed out the sufferings and convenience of passengers stranded in the deserts of California and Arizona when train crews quit and declared that 5000 deputy United States Marshals had been assigned to the protection of interstate commerce and the mails.

Bombing Cited.
Mail trains discontinued as a result of strike conditions were set down as approximately 950.

"Dynamiting, bombing, setting fire to railroad property and bridges are a few of the most dangerous means adopted against the railroad compa-

The statement specified in detail many of the disorders mentioned in the general charges.

Commenting upon the impeachment resolution against him offered by Representative Keller, Minnesota, Attorney-General Daugherty said Keller "has a grievance based on the fact that he could not control the Department of Justice in a case he was personally interested in."

GOVERNMENT SELLS 226
WOODEN VESSELS, BUILT DURING WAR, FOR $750,000

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The Government today sold its fleet of war-built wooden ships, the Shipping Board accepting a bid of $750,000 made by George D. Ferry, an attorney of the firm of Lent & Humphrey of San Francisco, for 226 of the vessels.

The bid was accepted at a competitive sale conducted by Chairman Lasker and members of the Shipping Board and the action leaves the Government with only 10 wooden ships on hand. The ships sold today represented a cost of $300,000,000.

None of the ships sold is being operated, 211 of them being tied up at Claremont, Va., and the others in Texas. The vessels range from 8500 tons to 6000 tons and include nine of the composite type.

The conditions of the sale preclude use of the vessels in regularly established trade routes, and make it mandatory that the ships be dismantled.

TIERNAN WITHDRAWS
FROM PATERNITY CASE"Fight Is Now Between My Wife and Poulin," Says Notre Dame Professor.

By the Post-Dispatch.
SOUTH BEND, Ind., Sept. 12.— Prof. John P. Tiernan, a member of the faculty at the law school of Notre Dame University and husband of Mrs. Augusta Tiernan, prosecuting witness in the paternity case against Harry Poulin, a clothing dealer, has withdrawn from the case. At the same time it is announced by both Prof. and Mrs. Tiernan that the latter will press the case to the finish.
She alleges Poulin is the father of a son born to her last November.

"Mrs. Tiernan will press the case to the finish," said Prof. Tiernan.
"I tried for eight months to arrange matters without scandal and without recourse to the courts. I desired to protect my two little girls, my own family and my associations. That which was not possible, I have now done by filing Mrs. Tiernan when every other course failed."

"That case is now in the hands of the prosecutor and the State. I have arranged for a separation under which my two little girls will be placed in a school in Chicago after the trial where I can visit them each week. I have provided for that course which is in accordance with good conscience, the law, and the protection of children."

"From now on the case is between Augusta Tiernan, with the full force and power of the State behind her, and Harry Poulin, whom she charges with betraying her."

A motion for a change of venue from the court of Justice A. W. Ho-sinaki was filed shortly before noon today by attorneys for Poulin.

MRS. MARGARET HAHN'S ESTATE

Joint Will Executed by Husband and Wife Left Holdings to Survivor.

Inventory of the estate of Mrs.
Margaret Hahn, wife of Peter Hahn, 8907 Milton avenue, who died June 11, was filed in Probate Court today.
Real estate and personal property valued at $813,257.21 was left to the husband by the provision of a joint will which they executed on April 14, 1918, in which they disposed of their joint estate to the survivor.

The will was filed June 14.
The property at 2907 Milton avenue is valued at $11,040 in the inventory. The remainder is listed as bonds and stocks, at par value, $616, 950; notes, $77,997.36; Liberty
Bonds, $600; miscellaneous credit, $100,000. The last item is described as a loan to the City Dairies Co. The holdings in bonds and shares are:
Cit y Dairies Co., $300,000; Buckingham Hotel Co., $187,650; Marshall Milk Condensing Co., $13,000; and the Burroughs Adding Machine Co., $155,400.

Judge William Dee Becker of the St. Louis Court of Appeals and Oron
E. Scott are executors.

By the Associated Press.
CHICAGO, Sept. 12.—A basis for settlement of the strike of railway shopmen was considered today by the General Policy Committee of the shop crafts, B. M. Jewell, head of the Railway Employees' Department of the American Federation of Labor, announced at the conclusion of the morning session.

Jewell's brief statement was the first public acknowledgment that a strike settlement basis had been presented to the Policy Committee, notwithstanding many rumors and reports concerning settlement plans.
He, however, would give no indication what the plan was and asked that speculation concerning it be dropped in order not to interfere with the committee's discussions.

There were indications, union officers said, that an agreement probably would be reached late today.

Reduction of Service Is Effective Tomorrow as Part of Schedule Applying to All Lines.

Reduction of passenger train service, effective tomorrow, on the St.
Louis division of the Cleveland, Cincinnati, Chicago and St. Louis (Big Four) Railroad, was announced today by the office of the assistant general passenger agent here as part of a reduction schedule applying to all the lines of the Big Four, and affecting about 20 trains in all.

Train 18, the Knickerbocker Special, which has been leaving Union Station at 1 p. m., will leave at 12:30
p. m., beginning tomorrow, and vice versa some additional stops between here and Indianapolis, thus taking the place of No. 14, which has been taken off. No. 19, from Indianapolis to St. Louis, arriving here at 8:55 p. m., has also been taken off. No. 8, which is taken off, was a local from St. Louis to Mattoon, Ill., leaving here at 6 a. m. No. 3, a local between Mattoon and Indianapolis, and No. 3, between Cleveland and Indianapolis, have also been taken off.

that a fight on the floor would avail nothing. A short, unofficial caucus of members of the committee in a hotel room ironed out details of the organization. The committeemen then filed across the street to a theater and elected Clements.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 12.—
Complete control of the Republican State organization by the Hyde administration and its supporters was demonstrated today when Dr. E. B.
Clements of Macon was re-elected chairman of the State Committee in the face of determined opposition from Reginald R. Brewster, Republican nominee for United States Senator, and Walter S. Dickey of Kansas City, old guard factionalist. Brewster and Dickey had tried without the slightest degree of success to break down the determination of the administration to re-elect Clements.

Last night it was believed that the Brewster-Dickey opposition to Clements had been composed by allowing Brewster to name the Executive Committee.

REPUBLICANS CARRY
MAINE BUT PARTY VOTE
SHOWS LOSS OF 31,000

By the Associated Press.
PORTLAND, Me., Sept. 12.—
WITH virtually all the returns in—only those from 44 small towns being missing—the figures of yesterday's election in Maine show a falling off in the Republican vote of approximately 31,000 from that of 1920, while the Democratic vote would appear to have gained about 4000.

For the governorship, Gov.
Percival P. Baxter, Republican, has a margin of 28,871 over William R. Pattangall, Democrat, former Attorney-General. The vote of 591 precincts out of 653 in the State for the governor-ship was: Baxter, 102,084; Pattangall, 73,423. The same pre-

NEGRO ADMITS HE STRUCK MAN WHO WAS FOUND DEAD

Coroner's Verdict Holds Him and Negress in Case of Cooper Whose Neck Was Broken in Alley.

CONFESSION MADE BY BOTH, POLICE SAY

Woman Declares Killing Occurred After Victim Had Argument With Her at Home Over $2.

Henry Morrell, 25 years old, a negro, living in the rear of 19 South Tenth street, testifying today at the coroner's inquest into the death of Victor Calleevert, 45, of 3811 South Broadway, who was found dead from a broken neck, his pockets turned inside out and his purse empty, in an alley in the rear of 1035 Clark avenue, at 10 p. m. Sunday, admitted he had struck Calleevert several times and knocked him down in the alley shortly before the body was found.

A coroner's verdict of homicide, holding Morrell and Ethel Davis, 25, a negress, of 103 South Tenth street, was returned. Morrell had testified he attacked Calleevert after the Davis woman had said Calleevert had created a disturbance in her home. Morrell admitted he and the woman had been drinking "white mule."

WILLMANN "WORRIED SICK" OVER JURY JOB

County Sheriff Finding It Hard to Get Panel for Election and Gambling Inquiry.

Sheriff John J. Willmann of St. Louis County today announced that he was having great difficulty in obtaining men of the desired character for membership in the grand jury which is to be impaneled Sept. 18 to investigate primary election frauds and gambling in the county.

Circuit Judge Wurdeman, in an order issued Thursday, left the selection of grand jurors entirely to the Sheriff's discretion. Sheriff Willmann said he would get a grand jury which would be "a surprise," and which would be composed only of "high-class men."

Corollary so that the Democrats were about as far off in their calculations of victory in Maine this year as they have been in the past with respect to rookbitten Pennsylvania. Their most telling point, however, is with respect to the percentage of Democratic gain over two years ago. They insist, of course, that the same ratio of gain applied elsewhere would mean a national victory. The Republicans are ready to admit this much—that the elections this fall will show Democratic gains in many parts of the country and that this is inevitable in a congressional year, but the Republicans refuse to concede that the percentage will be sufficient to capture either the public or the Senate.

MEDICAL STUDY BY PASTOR DISRUPTS ITALIAN CHURCH

Members of Congregation of Baptists Seek to Establish New Organization Upon His Resignation.

Difficulties over the study of medicine by the Rev. Amedeo Pascuta, pastor of the First Italian Baptist Church, which resulted in the request for his resignation by the St. Louis Baptist Mission Board several weeks ago, have brought a breach in the little church at Tenth and Carr streets.

The Mission Board, in charge of the church, decided that Pascuta's medical work was taking too much of his time and that he could not give sufficient attention to his church if he intended to practice medicine. Pascuta is not yet a practicing physician, still having about a year to complete his work.

Late in July Pascuta's resignation was requested. During August he held no meetings, and tendered his resignation, effective Sept. 1. He intended, he says, to devote his entire time to the study of medicine, but when his congregation discovered he was leaving, they insisted, Pascuta avers, upon going with him, and starting an independent church, to be known as the Independent Italian Baptist Church of St. Louis.

Pascuta accepted the offer, and a week ago Sunday afternoon the first meeting was held at the church, at Thirteenth street and Sullivan avenue. The Rev. Oliver Shank, pastor of that church, says that the service was merely for the baptism of a convert, and that he did not understand it to be the first meeting of the new Italian movement. He added that there were hardly enough Italian Baptists to form one church, not to consider two, and expressed an opinion that the movement would be short lived.

The membership of the Italian Baptist Church is said to be about 30, all of whom have joined in severing connections with the Mission Board, Pascuta states. The Independents are looking for a suitable building in which to hold meetings, and do not intend to return, he says, to the church of St. Louis.

The threatened break will have no effect upon our work here," he added. The Mission maintains a day nursery and does welfare work in the Italian district.

Pascuta has been pastor of the First Italian Baptist Church for six years.

MICHIGAN PRIMARY TO GIVE VERDICT ON NEWBERRY SEATING

Senator Townsend Opposed by Three Republicans Who Have Centered Fire on His Support of Junior Member.

By the Associated Press.

DETROIT, Sept. 12.—The fortunes of United States Senator Charles E. Townsend hold chief interest in Michigan's political arena today. The Senator is seeking renomination in a primary that will be recorded as one of the hardest fought political battles in the State's history.

With Senator Townsend opposed by three Republicans, who have centered their campaign fire on his support of Senator Truman H. Newberry, the primary today is regarded by a great number of voters as a verdict to be rendered by the electorate on the action of the Senate in seating the Michigan member.

Several close contests are in prospect in the Republican congressional primary. Seven Congressmen have opposition. They are: W. Frank James, Frank C. Stanton, Carl M. Mays, J. M. C. Smith and Earl G. Michener. The wet and dry issue figures prominently in two of these contests.

The gubernatorial race brought contests on both the Democratic and Republican tickets. James E. Balch, former Mayor of Kalamazoo, and Alva M. Cummins of Lansing, are the Democratic candidates, while on the Republican side, Gov. Alexander J. Croesbeck is opposed by Richard H. Fletcher of Bay City, former Labor Commissioner, and Theodore M. Joslin of Adrian.

Hundreds of Sewers Department workers, of all nationalities and colors, stood and shoulder to shoulder with contractors, railroad officers and city department heads. Mayor Kiel and his daughter and son were present. Men who had served the city in former administrations were present.

Among those at the church were scores of young women employed in various capacities at the city hall, who had become acquainted with Clancy during his long period of municipal service.

Burial was in Calvary Cemetery. Clancy died Saturday at Barnes Hospital. He is survived by his widow, Mrs. Winifred Dundon Clancy. Prior to the church services there were short services at the residence, 5044 Northland avenue.

Speaking of his decision to a Post-Dispatch reporter, Judge McElhinney said:

"The casting of ballots for the office of committeeman, in a primary election, is not, as in the case of other offices, a nomination, but is an election, and has been so held by the Supreme Court. The act of the 1921 Assembly, under which the Board of Canvassers was proceeding, was an attempt to provide for an election contest, by authorizing the producing of ballots, opening of boxes and recounting of votes.

"Under the State Constitution, this function cannot be assumed by a canvassing board, but must be before a court of justice. The canvassing board has no judicial power, is not empowered by law to conduct an election contest."

Judge McElhinney has not set a date for hearing on the temporary injunction, and he said it might not be necessary to do so, as he believed both sides would be satisfied of the correctness of his position.

How Applications for Series Seats Are Handled

Ten Clerks Kept Busy at Sportsman's Park—Estimated 10,000 Letters Were Received Yesterday—Favoritism Rumors Denied.

The clerical machinery set up at Sportsman's Park for handling requests for world's series baseball tickets in a manner to reduce possibility of speculation to a minimum and to make sure the sole basis upon which requests will be met, will be order of receipt was explained yesterday to a reporter for the Post-Dispatch.

All this work will be in vain if the Browns fail to win the American League pennant, but the close race between the Yankees and the New York American League team has made it imperative the Browns' business management begin the task of preparing to allot tickets and consider plans for enlarging the seating capacity.

A large room beneath the grandstand on the Spring avenue side of the park has been reserved for the filing of orders by 10 clerks. Tables extend the length of the room on either side. One of these tables is for the filing of requests which comply with regulations.

The first requests received already are in place at the far end of this table. They are the letters that came by special delivery last Sunday, the day set for the first receipt of requests. There were several hundred of these. They were opened, one at a time, the enclosed sheets on which the requests were written being spread out and laid face downward, one upon the other. When the time for filling the orders arrives the pile will be turned over, so that the first letter opened will be the first order filled.

Bennett Clark's Letter First.

Robert Quinn, secretary of the club, gave the reporter a peek at the pile. The first letter, and consequently the first person to obtain a reservation, will be Lieutenant-Colonel Bennett C. Clark, son of Champ Clark, late Speaker of the House of Representatives.

The second pile comprises letters received by regular mail Monday morning. These letters filled two large sacks. They have not been counted, but Quinn declared the postman who delivered them said the sacks contained about 10,000 letters. Letters received subsequently are similarly arranged in order of receipt.

Unusual Interest in Arizona Primary Today Indicated.

By the Associated Press.

PHOENIX, Ariz., Sept. 12.—An unusually heavy registration of voters is an indication of the interest being taken in today's primary and special election in Arizona, in which candidates for the United States Senate, Congress, the Governorship and other State officers will be named and 11 proposed amendments to the State Constitution will be put to a vote.

The campaign between Charles B. Ward of Phoenix and George W. P. Hunt, former Governor of Arizona, for the Governorship, has been a particularly hard fought battle. The successful one will oppose Gov. Thomas E. Campbell at the November election. Gov. Campbell has no opposition for the Republican nomination.

Vermont Republicans Electing Ticket Today.

By the Associated Press.

MONTPELIER, Vt., Sept. 12.—Montpelier Republicans at the polls today will express their preference for gubernatorial, legislative and county candidates. The choice for the Governorship is between Redfield Proctor, a marble producer of Proctor, and Lieutenant-Governor Abram W. Fouts of Cornwall, a farmer. Representative Frank L. Greene of the First District is opposed for nomination for United States Senator by successor Senator Carroll S. Page.

Representative Greene, for whose seat Frederick G. Fleetwood of Morrisville will be the Republican nominee, will be opposed by Dr. William B. Mayo of Northfield, Democrat, in the November election.

Six Hurt in Auto Collision.

By the Associated Press.

PORT WORTH, Tex., Sept. 12.—Six persons were injured yesterday afternoon when a police emergency auto crashed into a touring car. The officers were traveling at high speed when it struck the machine driven by A. O. Graves, and occupied by his wife. There were four officers in the police car. Both machines turned over several times and were demolished.

Three Boys Killed in Explosion.

By the Associated Press.

MADISONVILLE, Ky., Sept. 12.—Three boys, visitors at the Rock Diamond mines, were burned to death and one man was seriously injured in a gas explosion at the mines yesterday.

WOMAN POURS OIL ON CLOTHING, ENDS LIFE WITH FIRE

Husband, Hearing Screams, Finds Mrs. Della Yagge, 38, Belleville in Flames and Kneeling by Bed.

When Mrs. Della Yagge, 38, old, wife of Arthur Yagge, a miner, concluded yesterday afternoon that life was not worth living she poured oil on her hair and clothing and set fire to it as she knelt before her bed at her home, 615 Garfield, Belleville. She died at 10 last night at St. Elizabeth's Hospital.

Mrs. Yagge had been suffering some time from a nervous ailment which caused her at times to be way to spells of screaming. Her husband and Charles L. Nesbit, lives next door, were sitting in a yard when they heard her screaming and the bed clothing flames. While Yagge tried to smother the flames, Nesbit ran downstairs and brought a bucket of water, with which flames were extinguished, but until she was burned from head to foot. Yagge's hands were found in tearing off her garments.

Two hours before Mrs. Yagge went to an undertaker's to have a body of Mrs. Joseph Simpson, who was killed in an automobile accident Saturday afternoon, and as she sat at the casket she exclaimed: "I am awful to meet such a violent death. I hope I never will."

It is not likely the outcome of the contest for the pennant will be apparent, or the price of tickets fixed, to permit distribution earlier than two weeks hence.

ST. LOUIS ART LEAGUE SUE FOR $601 FOR PRINTING

Behavior of Crowd, Preventing Sale of Programs at State Centennial.

Cases Action.

The crowd, which by its impulsive proportions interrupted the giving of the Lafayette Pageant in Twelfth street last autumn as part of the Missouri centennial celebration, also ruined the plan to defray expenses of the event by the sale of programs. Those in charge could not make the crowd behave, to say nothing of making it yield up money for the sale.

Consequently in Circuit Court there has appeared a suit of the Bowman Printing Co., for printing, against the St. Louis Art League in the sum of $601. Breckinridge Long, Hector P. Adams, F. E. A. Curley and Arthur Bostwick also are named as defendants.

Curley said today that there was nothing to be said about the suit.

ANARCHY MENA IN LAWLESSNESS

BREWSTER S

Republican Candidate S. Senate Sounds Warning Against Disorder in Campaign.

HERRIN RIOTS ARE TAKEN AS EXAMPLE

Action of Illinois Miners in Aiding Defense Men Indicted for Killing Denounced.

By a Staff Correspondent.

SPRINGFIELD, Mo., Sept. 12.—The red flag of anarchy will itself in the face of American law unless lawlessness is stamped out of the rights of the citizen and once more are made secure.

United States Senator, Reginald I. Brewster, declared today in opening speech of his campaign delivered to the Republican convention here.

Brewster made and extended for a halt in the increasing lawlessness in American Government. He spoke less governmental influence in business, entered a protest of the Republican national convention, exhorted Missouri to existing labor troubles, and merely a privilege and tendencies to depart from a representative government into a pure democracy.

Herrin Riots Denounced.

But the burden of his address directed against disorders in law to existing labor troubles, and he denounced conditions of which riots at Herrin, Ill., were examples.

"A few months ago the nation was shocked at the account of a bloody and cruel massacre of helpless victims of 'disgraced civilization,'" he said.

"The details of these awful where poor, helpless human beings were crowded together and murdered in cold blood and revolting cruelty are well known to all."

"No one for a moment would tend the majority of the men in this, or even a goodly number of them, condone or sympathize with these awful crimes."

find, however, when an indictment is voted by a grand jury charged with the duty of protecting the public, that the members of a union with party members, who are the Farrington, president of the Miners' Union, has the effort to issue this statement: 'The Miners' Union already has every means at its command to defend any and all of its members that may be indicted in connection with the trouble at the mine of the Southern Illinois and Mining Co. We have a appreciation of the magnitude of the task that has been set before us, and we have vowed to do nothing undone that shall enable us to combat these forces.'

"Since when have we spoken of the 'peace' movement? 'Trouble'? Can it be possible Mr. Farrington means the Miners' Union has pledged means at its command to defend any and all of its members that may be indicted in connection with the trouble at the mine of the Southern Illinois and Mining Co. We have a appreciation of the magnitude of the task that has been set before us, and we have vowed to do nothing undone that shall enable us to combat these forces.'

"During the railroad strike and property he countenanced the action of the miners in the protection of their own interests. He proclaimed that it will not only protect the murderers, but the last dollar in its exchequer be spent, if necessary, to bring guilty to justice."

"The repeated destruction of property he countenanced the action of the miners in the protection of their own interests. He proclaimed that it will not only protect the murderers, but the last dollar in its exchequer be spent, if necessary, to bring guilty to justice."

QUIT BANK BEFORE HE FILED ANNULMENT SUIT

B. D. Harris Second National City Executive Involved in Marital Dispute.

By Leased Wire From the New York Bureau of the Post-Dispatch.

NEW YORK, Sept. 12.—With the filing of papers yesterday in the Supreme Court commencing the annulment suit of Beverly D. Harris, a former vice president of the National City Bank, against his wife, whom he married in St. Louis in 1915, it became known that Harris surprised the bank's board of directors last June by tendering his resignation with the simple explanation that developments in his personal affairs made it advisable for him to sever all his business and banking connections. At his urgent request, therefore, the bank accepted the resignation immediately.

Harris was the second executive of the National City Bank to become involved in a sensational marital dispute. The divorce suit of James A. Stillman, president of the bank, against Mrs. Anne U. Stillman, in which the paternity of her son, Guy Stillman, is attacked, has been pending in court for more than a year.

Harris' first move in case. The first move by Harris' attorneys was a motion to enjoin Mrs. Harris from suing her husband in the municipal courts for breach of the separation agreement—for the four $500 installments of her separation allowance, which have become due and unpaid since the husband decided he had sufficient grounds for the annulment proceedings.

As was told in yesterday's Post-Dispatch, Harris, in his complaint, says his wife misrepresented herself to him as the daughter of one of the most prominent families of the South, whereas, he declares, she was actually the associate of "promiscuous and disreputable" characters and was supported by a gambler. He denies what his wife in turn says about him. Mrs. Harris, in her answer, declares her husband was cruel and a drunkard. The marriage, she says, was the result of his ardent courting. She denied having ever posed as the daughter of Stacker Lee of Memphis, whose family owned the line of Lee steamers on the Mississippi River, and she likewise denied having ever lived an immoral life.

Some of the details may be related Thursday when the injunction motion is argued, but it is probable that the major accusations and counter accusations will not be presented in detail until the annulment suit itself comes to trial several months from now. It was immediately after he had resigned from the National City Bank that Harris stopped paying the separation allowance and entered into formal preparation for the annulment case. He had been a vice president of the bank since December, 1914. Previously he was vice president of the South Texas National Bank of Houston. He was active in the committees and councils which had much to do with framing the Federal reserve act. According to Harris, he and his wife separated in July, 1919. On pressed a wish for a divorce with a Dec. 17, 1919, he alleges, she ex-settlement of $500,000.

[LEATHER, BOOTS AND SHOES]

ST. LOUIS is one of the greatest boot and shoe markets of the world.

The far-sighted business leaders in this industry were among the first to appreciate the great saving in production made possible by the nearness of St. Louis to raw material on the one hand and to the ultimate consumer on the other.

From the beginning of the development of this industry in St. Louis, the bankers of the city have worked with these men to build up the great manufacturing plants which give employment to thousands of our citizens and supply so economically the shoe demands of the country.

The First National Bank with its excellent organization and large resources, believes in St. Louis and stands back of St. Louis business and industry.

to your druggist

The simplest way to end a corn is Blue-jay. A touch stops the pain instantly. Then the corn loosens and comes out. Made in a colorless clear liquid (one drop does it) and in extra thin plasters. The action is the same.

SOCIETIES TO SUPPORT
PURE MILK CARNIVAL

Several St. Louis Organizations
Plan Booths to Aid Post-Dispatch Fund.

The mammoth eight-day carnival which will be given on the Show Grounds, Vandeventer and Laclede avenues, for the benefit of the Post-Dispatch Pure Milk and Free Ice Fund, Sept. 17 to 24 inclusive, will have the support of several local organizations whose plans for booths and attractions designed to lure the nickels into the fund for the babies will be announced within a day or two.

Concession space is available for local concessionists under the direction of Fred B. S'Renno, 410 North Twenty-third street, general director of the carnival. His telephone number is Remont 340.

As has already been announced, the Siegel and Silbon Shows will be on the Carnival Ground with their five rides and twelve shows, offering wholesome diversion for young and old and serving at the same time as a source of revenue for the Milk and Ice Fund which is sadly lagging in its progress toward the $10,000 goal. In addition to the seaplane or aerial swing, there will be a merry-go-round, without which no carnival is complete, the usual Ferris wheel, a breath-taking "whip" and a circular swing for the tiny tots. The shows include Azora, a wild woman; an athletic exhibit; Tripp, the armless man who shaves, writes, eats, saws and hammers with his feet and toes; a dog and pony circus, a midge show; a Polles show; Hawaiian dancers; a mystic exhibit; a motor-drome and numerous candy and drink stands and other concessions common to a carnival.

The Show Grounds at Vandeventer and Laclede are easily accessible, since the place is adjacent to three car lines, Vandeventer, Sarah and Laclede, and with the co-operation of the weather man it is hoped that the carnival will net a sum sufficient to make up the deficit in the fund for the babies.

Robber Returns 60 Cents.

Thomas L. Simpson, 7315 South Grand boulevard, a milk wagon driver, reported to the police he was making a delivery at 5807 Minnesota avenue at 5 a. m. today when a man with a revolver held him up, taking 60 cents from his pockets. When further search failed to reveal any more money the robber asked Simpson if that was all he had. Simpson replied it was. "Well, take it back. I'm no cheap skate," the robber remarked, handed back the 60 cents and ran away.

Man Stringing Wires Electrocut.

By the Associated Press.
DU QUOIN, Ill., Sept. 12.—While stringing wires at Elkhart, five miles south of here, Michael Crabb, 40 years old, was electrocuted yesterday by coming in contact with a high tension wire carrying a voltage of 33,000. Crabb was brought here to the miners' rescue station where a pulmoner was used without success.

Two Leaders Quit Villa's Ranch.
By the Associated Press.
EL PASO, Tex., Sept. 12.—Two prominent Villista leaders have quit the ranch of Francisco Villa at Canutillo, Durango, according to information received here. Declaring he had not been treated fairly in division of crops, Gen. Pabline Michael has gone to Mexico City to lay a complaint before the Government. Gen. Nicolas Hernandez also has left the ranch. Neither is at outs with Villa, but both have grudges against one of his lieutenants. It is reported.

ALLEN UP SHORT TIME IN FIRST GLIDER FLIGHT

American, in Initial Attempt at Gersfeld, Tries to Climb Too Steeply at Start.

Special Cable to the Post-Dispatch.
GERSFELD, Germany, Sept. 12.—Edmund T. Allen, American glider, made his first flight from Wasserkuppe Hill yesterday. Conditions were unfavorable. He had bad luck at the start and was up for only two minutes and 40 seconds.

Allen took off from the north crest, heading into a cold, northwest wind. But at the take-off he tried to climb too steeply, stalled his plane and was forced to dive to regain the necessary flying speed. This lost him all chance of making one of the long flights such as the German pilots made, for all were accomplished by keeping over the crest of the hill.

Allen was too far down the hill before he could pull up, but after that he made the best of the remaining soaring possibilities. All things considered, his piloting from then on was excellent.

Heading into the northeast with the right wing slightly dipped into the wind, the American gradually slipped over a stretch of woods to land in a meadow on the other side. After his first drop, Allen soared for nearly a minute on two updrafting currents, rising 40 meters and thus gaining the necessary height to clear the woods.

Allen's skill in doing this came in for much praise from expert observers. Martens, who, with Heston, holds the record for soaring, declared:

"Allen's piloting was good, except for a tendency to stall his plane in his eagerness to climb. He should learn to start horizontally and allow the up-flowing air to lift the plane."

Also his machine is too short and too light."
The Germans helped Allen all they could, Martens and Klemperer showing him where the best soaring could be had and instructing him as to currents.
The American took a 20-second trial hop before his main flight, but this was less successful even than the later one. However, he will try again and hopes to do more actual climbing.

A Milton Player-Piano, $495

Bought on the New Protective Payment Plan

Here is the plan. Try to stop in tomorrow and carefully inspect and try out this excellent Player-Piano. You'll like it. We will gladly make arrangements whereby you may buy on convenient terms of payment.

Up to this time, anyone who purchased a Piano on the payment plan ran a risk—the possibility that sickness or accident would stop the income, and consequently make the meeting of regular monthly payments temporarily out of the question. And whatever had been previously paid, was lost! Now, however, you are insured against such a contingency. You begin again where the insurance company left off. There are no back payments to make, no losses to cover.

Call and ask about this Purchaser's Installment Protective Service as applied to the purchase of any Piano.

Looking Forward and Back

Today marks the seventieth anniversary of the founding of the House of Meyer Brothers Drug Company. Three score and ten years is a long time for a business to function continuously in its chosen field of activity, and this company's history may be said to march with the story of the growth of St. Louis to the great modern city we know.

Birthdays are good days to take stock and set up a human balance sheet—to review the past—to plan the future—to give thanks for favorable fortune—to learn anew the lessons of adversity; and, with the knowledge of how both good and ill came to us, to fortify ourselves with the conviction that honest service is always assured of reward. Today Meyer Brothers Drug Company has special reason to celebrate its birthday. It marks the complete recovery of this business from a condition that but a few years ago threatened the company with certain extinction.

It was in February, 1915, we found ourselves almost hopelessly involved financially. By reason of large and unfortunate outside investments a serious financial situation had been created that left but little save a remarkable prestige established during the preceding 63 years of the existence of the house.

A creditors' committee was selected and a receiver appointed by the United States District Court to take charge of salvaging what remained of our business. The company's obligations were funded in a series of notes payable annually over a period of years. There was no alternative but an internal reorganization. A new management was put in charge, and, with every ounce of possible energy devoted to the task before us, business was resumed. Our determination was that the old house of Meyer Brothers Drug Company would discharge its entire obligation honorably and as promptly as possible.

At the end of the first nine months the receiver was relieved, a board of trustees for creditors was created, and as time went on each obligation was paid as it came due. The final payment, due in November of this year, has today been anticipated and Meyer Brothers Drug Company stands forth free from all indebtedness except for current purchases of merchandise.

In the discharge of this heavy financial obligation, we incurred another obligation of which time will never relieve us—an obligation we prize as an asset—not a liability. It is right and it is our purpose to thus make public acknowledgment of this present debt—a debt of gratitude to those whose aid has made the rehabilitation of this company possible.

We therefore pay tribute—

To the Trustees—Mr. Oscar L. Biebinger, Mr. Daniel N. Kirby, Mr. John F. Queeny, and to the Receiver, Mr. Edwin W. Lee, all of whom splendidly co-operated in the rebuilding of the company for its restoration to the place it formerly occupied in the commercial life of St. Louis.

To Our Loyal Employees—to whom the honor of the House of Meyer Brothers was as their own personal honor. Who, from the highest to the lowest, toiled prodigiously and with unwavering devotion to bring about the honorable discharge of every liability upon the company.

To Our Field Representatives—whose courage never faltered, whose determination dominated every difficulty. Who, recognizing that our salvation depended so largely on their efforts, threw themselves heart and soul into the fight and piled up increasing sales volume year after year.

To Our Customers—who sympathetically and wholeheartedly rallied to the support of the house with which many of them had dealt for many years—some of them for over half a century. Who backed up their sympathy with actual financial assistance, by making not only prompt but, at times, advance payments of current obligations, thus enabling us to operate with a minimum of working capital.

To Our Banks, Manufacturing Connections and Supply Houses—who inspired us with their confidence throughout the reconstruction, tendered friendly and valuable counsel, lent us their strength, and furnished accommodation beyond the requirements of ordinary business relationship.

To Our Stockholders—who have patiently refrained from either asking or expecting dividends upon their holdings during this whole period of stress—seven years—and who by their actions in every crisis endorsed the policy of the management and upheld our hands.

To these we owe all that we have and are today

Looking back across the past, we realize we could not possibly have foreseen the tremendous difficulties that were ahead of us. There was then no hint of America being drawn into the war. No heavy Federal taxes were anticipated—no onerous regulations on business—none of the many hindrances, whether wisely or unwisely imposed, under which industry has had to labor.

But knit together with a new spirit, inspired with a new hope, urged by a new determination to succeed in the face of any obstacle, we forged our way through. Today, welded in the fire of adversity, wrought under the hammer blows of circumstances, the Meyer Brothers Drug Company faces the future strong and confident.

The opportunity for service was never greater than today. Never did a tomorrow hold out greater promise of reward. Our resources are ample. Our connections are world-wide. As the Largest Drug House in the World we are prepared to meet the requirements of today's ever-changing business conditions with an intensified service over a greater territory than ever before.

GERMAN DELEGATES SENT BACK TO PARIS

Berlin Acts to Prevent Breaking Off of Reparations Negotiations.

By the Associated Press.
BERLIN, Sept. 12.—In sending Dr. Fischer and Karl Bergmann to Paris again with instructions to hold themselves at the disposition of the reparations commission, Germany has initiated steps calculated to forestall definite breaking off of the negotiations begun last week with M. Bemelmans and De La Croix, the Belgian representative.
Rejection of the German proposal for prolongation of the term of the issue of the treasury notes to be handed to Belgium, it is believed in official quarters, would be tantamount to a demand for the Reichsbank's gold as security. But the Germans are equally certain that France would be willing to dispense with such an alternative in the present situation.

Germany May Be Declared in Voluntary Default.

By the Associated Press.
PARIS, Sept. 12.—Germany apparently faces the strong possibility of being declared in voluntary default unless she meets the Reparation Commission's terms for guaranteeing the six months' note to be given Belgium, or unless British banks, as is deemed possible, come to the rescue and arrange to handle the August and September notes. This might delay action until the Germans could arrange for similar guarantees for their later notes.

CHARLES STOCKS NOT WITNESS IN HERRIN INVESTIGATION

Says He Was Not Summoned Before Grand Jury and Did Not

The Post-Dispatch has received the following letter from Charles Stocks of Herrin, Ill., named as one of the witnesses against the 27 men indicted last week by a special grand jury at Marion, Ill., for the murder of John Shoenaker, one of the victims of the Herrin massacre:
"Editor Post-Dispatch, St. Louis, Mo.—In your issue of Sept. 8, with reference to the witnesses who testified before the grand jury at Marion regarding troubles at the strip mine between Herrin and Marion, you use the name of 'Charles Stocks.' As far as I know, I am the only person of that name in Williamson County. I have lived in Herrin and conducted business here for nearly 20 years. At the time of the troubles the grand jury has been investigating I was engaged in conducting a hotel at Dawson Springs, Ky., and was there on June 22 and 23 last, the dates of the troubles at the strip mine. I have not been summoned before the grand jury nor have I given testimony before that body. In justice to me, please print this statement."

"CHARLES STOCKS," was given to a Post-Dispatch staff correspondent at Marion, with other names, by Attorney Thomas Marshall, who drew the indictments, as one of the witnesses in the Shoenaker case. The indictment, on file in the Circuit Clerk's office at Marion, bears the name, "Charlie Stocks," as one of the witnesses. State's Attorney Duty, however, told the Post-Dispatch today that Stocks has not been a witness before the grand jury.

HABEAS CORPUS ACTION DEVELOPS LEGAL TANGLE

Writ Refused, Application Dismissed, Defendants Rearrested and a New Application Filed.

A legal tangle developed in Circuit Judge Franklin Miller's court yesterday when attorneys sought to gain the freedom, by writ of habeas corpus, of two men wanted at Duqu, Ill., on an embezzlement charge, who already were at liberty on bond.

The judge refused the writ. To get a new start the attorneys dismissed the application, the defendants, Fred A. Rode and Otto Frerichs, were rearrested on a fugitive warrant by officers waiting for them at the courtroom door, and a new application was filed for a writ of habeas corpus. This was set for hearing at 2 p. m. tomorrow.

Rode and Frerichs were arrested last week in St. Louis at the request of St. Clair County officers on a charge of embezzling $5000 from the Lecroix Finance Co. of Duqu. Application for a writ of habeas corpus was filed Saturday, set for hearing Monday, and in the meantime the men were granted bond in the Court of Criminal Correction.

THIEF LOSES COAT AND HAT

Woman Storekeeper Also Recovers Two Boxes of Shirts From Him.

Mrs. Florence Gronski, owner of a dry goods store at 1424 Cass avenue, encountered a man carrying two boxes of shirts and leaving her store yesterday afternoon when she returned to the store after a visit across the street to make change. She attempted to grab the boxes and the man struck her on the face with one of them, dropped the box and fled. Mrs. Gronski pursued him for two blocks, assisted by others in the neighborhood, and at the end of the chase turned over to the police a hat and coat which the thief had dropped, together with the second box of shirts. Initials in the hat are being used by the police in an effort to trace the man.

Estate of Mrs. Julia C. Cabanne. An inventory of the estate of Mrs. Julia C. Cabanne, who died July 18, shows property of the par value of

VICTIMS HERE OF ALLEGED SWINDLER HELD IN CLEVELAND

Man Known in St. Louis as Ernest A. Mitchell Also Obtained $4500 From New York Woman, She Says.

SHE ELOPED WITH HIM FROM CHICAGO

While Here He Conducted Purported Accountancy Business and They Lived at 5316 Pershing Avenue.

Included in the list of alleged victims of a man known here as Ernest A. Mitchell, "chartered accountant" and purported Oxford graduate, now under arrest in Cleveland on charges of using the mails to defraud, is the wife of a New Yorker connected with a Broad street importing house. The woman asserts Mitchell obtained $4500 from her after inducing her to desert her husband.

Mitchell was arrested in Cleveland last week, as St. Louis police were seeking to have him held after they learned his operations here this summer had resulted in the alleged combined loss of at least $700 by several St. Louisans.

With him when taken was the New Yorker's wife, who lived with him, and paid the rent, it is said, of the apartment the two occupied at 5316 Pershing avenue, the three months they were in this city. Cleveland police released her after she disclosed her identity and wired her husband for forgiveness.

Husband Refuses Forgiveness. "Nothing doing," was the brief reply of the husband, who had engaged detective agencies to trace her after she eloped with Mitchell from Chicago while the New Yorker was on a business trip to the Pacific Coast. Cleveland authorities, who saw her since.

In letters to St. Louisans helping him locate his wife, the New Yorker wrote that "she took all the cash she could lay her hands on when she left with Mitchell for he was a swindler." The husband was seeking "justice," he said, and expressed a desire to "get his hands" on Mitchell.

Mitchell, described here as "polished, suave and very English," appeared in St. Louis last May and obtained office space for an accountancy business with a firm in a downtown office building. Here, the manager of the firm says, he spent much time interviewing applicants for partnerships and branch manager-

Left St. Louis in August. He disappeared from St. Louis suddenly early in August, after the New Yorker had traced his wife here, despite her change to bobbed and hennaed hair. Two checks, totaling $125, given by Mitchell to the manager of the office firm for rent, money advanced and other services, were returned unendorsed by the Detroit bank upon which they were drawn. An investigation followed.

Police learned that M. J. McDonough of 2947 Palm street had given Mitchell $500 on the partnership proposition. They believe other persons may also have made advance payments. Mitchell, they say, was operating from two local bases, as he had opened another accountancy business in a second downtown office building and had put the owners to the expense of extensive alterations.

Several unpaid bills against Mitchell then bobbed up. Among these were one for a typewriter; one of $40 at the Art Craft Shop Co., 532 Arcade Building; a bill of $23 at the William J. Kennedy Stationery Co., 214 North Fourth street; and one of $15 at the J. I. Chappell Optical Co., 514 Olive street.

Trap Laid for Mitchell. Local police learned Mitchell was in Cleveland when the brother of a man there who was about to invest in Mitchell's supposed accountancy business here wired a St. Louis friend to investigate his standing. A trap was laid for Mitchell, through the Cleveland man, but efforts to obtain a warrant charging him with issuing worthless checks here failed because of a technicality.

Albert Tinsley, a Cleveland accountant, however, had complained that Mitchell had defrauded him of $200 and had made arrangements for him to put up $2500 more for the Cleveland manager of the accountancy business. The trap was sprung. Mitchell, unable to raise $2500, is held for the Federal authorities, who say he is wanted in Youngstown, Detroit, Chicago, Halifax, N. S., and other cities for working the same alleged scheme.

PHARMACY SUE FOR $10,000 ON ALLEGED POISON SALE TO BOY

Charging their son, Samuel Cohen, 15 years old, ended his life on May 1 by drinking poison which had been sold to him in violation of a city ordinance, Meyer Cohen and his wife, of 1436 Blair avenue, today sued suit in the Circuit Court for $10,000 damages against the Cass Avenue Pharmacy, 1434 Cass avenue.

The youth was found dead in the washroom of Fire Engine Company No. 17, at 2250 Eastern avenue, after he had requested permission to get a drink of water there. Two empty bottles were at his side. His father at that time told police the youth had been extremely nervous and for six weeks, following a breakdown, had been despondent. The Cohens name Hugo Ridoft and Modisto Fabbri as proprietors of the pharmacy.

PARIS, Sept. 12.—While still desirous to accord formal interviews, former Premier Clemenceau has given to the correspondent of the Petit Parisien who called on him at his residence at St. Vincent-sur-Oise, some details of his contemplated trip to the United States. He intends, he says, to leave about Nov. 1 and plans to deliver four lectures. "It is well understood," the Tiger added, "that I will be carrying out no formal mission and that I will accept no banquet or anything of that sort. I will speak in my name. America asks me my opinion; I'll give it to her and that's all."

He began by declaring he wanted to speak to America because it was urgent to do so.

Will Tell U. S. It Is Wrong.

"Nobody speaks for France," he exclaimed brusquely, and then went on: "Nobody, and yet the moment has come. It is high time to tell the United States that it is wrong, that we are neither militarists nor imperialists, that the French people merit the entire confidence of their friends, the free people of America."

To the question as to whether he would speak of the war, M. Clemenceau replied:

"Yes, above all to recall this basic truth, that the war's aim was peace, and that if all allies would remain in peace, that they were in war the world would not struggle against so much misery, so many difficulties."

"To Americans I will speak much of America and a little of England. Also I will talk of the peace treaty. It must be made clear once and for all that this treaty deprives the Germans of all pretext for a war of revenge."

To Speak Simply and Amicably.

"All that I have to say to the Americans I will say simply and amicably. Simply, because America is a country of simple and straightforward things. Amicably, because the Americans are our great friends."

The Paris press is still boiling over with comment on Clemenceau's proposals. Organs of both extreme right and extreme left unite in bitter condemnation; the more moderate organs are strongly favorable.

The Royalist Action Française, which stubbornly supported Clemenceau's ministry from 1917 to 1919, now an evidently embittered enemy. While praising the Tiger as a great Frenchman, "the French standard-bearer," a representative Frenchman, "the French Cincinnatus," etc., it criticizes the Government of both France and America.

The very form of government in the two republics, it says, "renders their conversation difficult. Both are similarly, though with difficulty, stirred up. The whole of American life is a permanent strife and political competition. Ours is perhaps less mobile; thanks to the number of political abstainers and the absence of high finance."

View of Royalist Gables.

The Royalist Gables welcomes the former Premier's trip as a reply to the Stinnes-Lubetac reparations agreement, saying:

"Here we have—at the hour when good Frenchmen are anxious to see the French-German reconciliation—another proof of strengthening the Republic. That is the single real national policy, one which it is our duty to abandon."

The Socialist Journal du Peuple attacks M. Clemenceau, saying he is only England's tool.

"With a perspective which makes him the most popular Frenchman in America," it says, "Clemenceau only humiliates himself about France when he is able to serve British interests. He often happened that in order to help the latter he has hurt the former."

DIGESTIBILITY OF FOODS NOW TESTED WITH GLASS JAR

Government Experts Develop Artificial Stomach That Imitates Work of Human Organ.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Experts of the Department of Agriculture have developed an "artificial stomach" to test the digestibility of foods. A glass jar is used instead of the human stomach.

"It is now possible to determine the digestibility of the protein in foods, and whether it is necessary to cook them, without conducting feeding tests, thus saving much time and expense," the specialists assert. By the use of certain laboratory apparatus, it is explained, it "is possible to imitate at least a part of the digestive processes."

Here is the plan: The proteins to be tested, those from beans, for instance, are placed in glass containers in a dilute solution of hydrochloric acid, similar to that found normally in the stomach. The proper quantity of pepsin is added, and the mixture is placed in an incubator, where the temperature is kept at the same point as that of the human stomach, about 37 degrees Centigrade.

After a certain number of hours the contents of the container are sampled and analyzed. The digestive effect is measured by the ratio of what is known as amino-nitrogen to total nitrogen. By running through cooked and uncooked protein from beans it is possible to determine which is the more easily acted upon by the chemicals in this artificial stomach, and consequently by the stomach itself.

"After the food has been acted upon by the pepsin and hydrochloric acid, it is treated with trypsin and a dilute alkaline solution as nearly as possible like the digestive juices found in the small intestine. This second process tells the investigator what the probable digestive action on any particular food will be in the intestine."

The department experts assert that the "artificial stomach" will tell if one protein is more digestible than another and whether it is more digestible when cooked or raw.

STATE PRIMARY SYSTEM ASSAILED AT CONVENTION

Constitution Commission on Elections Advocates Return to Old Method of Selecting State Candidates.

PRESENT LAW SAID TO BAR POOR MAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 12.—The constitution convention late yesterday began consideration of the proposal to restore the convention system of nominating candidates for all State offices. The Commission on Elections and Suffrage in its report recommended that nominations for State offices be made by convention, while the manner of nominating candidates for county and city offices was left optional with the Legislature.

E. N. Meador of Cassville and George H. Williams of St. Louis county, spoke in favor of the return of the convention systems. Williams launched a vigorous attack against the present primary system. He declared that persons desiring to control nominations can do it through the primary systems better than in a convention because they do not have to "bribe" their constituents and "can work under cover."

Just before the convention adjourned Albert M. Clark of Richmond, offered a substitute amendment to provide that nominations for all State offices in districts composed of more than one county shall be made by convention. He said the purpose of his substitute was to clarify the situation, as at present some doubt as to the manner of nominating candidates for the Legislature under the section recommended by the committee.

Clark, in his argument in favor of restoring the convention system, declared that under the primary system minorities can control nominations, that the cost of primary elections in Missouri is $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, that the system is forced to spend enormous sums. He said that the primary system has closed the door of public office to the poor man, who cannot afford to "bribe" his constituents in a State-wide campaign.

Statement by Williams.

"I have always felt that the primary law as such was wrong for psychological, practical and political reasons," said Williams. "It is the governmental system in many states and is based on the idea that the ill of democracy are necessarily cured by more democracy. That conclusion does not follow. Our forefathers instituted a representative form of government, with the idea that the duty and responsibility of government should be cast upon the chosen representatives elected for that purpose."

"Members of legislatures in various states did not seem to be responding to the obligations thus cast upon them and the proponents of the primary then arose. It is their idea that government and the right of government resides in the mass, and that the mass always should retain the power of government in their own hands. It is true that eternal vigilance is the price of their liberties, and it is largely for that reason that we insist upon thoroughgoing and comprehensive systems of public education."

"The truth is it does not follow that the actual work of government itself should reside in the mass of the population, because the mass has neither the preparation nor the ability to do the work of government. The anti-French sentiment for transacting the business of government, and it is no discredit to them to say so. The stockholders of a corporation elect directors and the directors elect officers, and the officers and directors run the business. This does not mean that the stockholders are not interested in and may not have an intelligent understanding of the things done by their officers and directors."

Costing Men for Office.

"Again, it was not the theory of our forefathers and should not be our theory that men should call themselves to office. The true theory was and now should be, that men should be called to office. All men who have been interested in the affairs of government know that it is usually the weakest men and the least fitted men who are apt to call themselves to office."

Political Parties.

"Again, politics in our country is run by political parties. State and Federal laws everywhere recognize the existence and responsibility of political parties. Courts take judicial notice of their existence and their obligations and rights. The effect of a primary is to relieve political parties of all sense of party responsibility for the selection or election of its candidates."

"A man is a candidate for the nomination for Governor or for Senator. Does he run as a candidate on the platform for a political party?"

—THE REAL AMERICA DIED IN 1860

British Writer, in Attack on This Country's Part in War, Declares "America Has the Gold of the World, But We Have Saved Our Souls."

By CLARE SHERIDAN.

Special Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—I motored recently with my children to the Rudyard Kipling for tea. I asked him about his recent visit to the battlefields of France in company with the King, which had resulted in a poem called "The King's Pilgrimage." I wanted to know what he meant by the last verse, and especially by the last two lines of that verse:

All that they had they gave—they gave—
In sure and single faith.
There can no knowledge reach their grave.
To make them grudge their death.
Save only if they understood.
That after all was done
We they redeemed denied their blood

"America Came In Too Late."

I said to him, "You are not a radical, a Socialist, nor a pacifist—why do you say that we mock at that which our men died for?"

He looked at me as at one who has been absent; he looked at me wonderingly, and after a moment's silence:

"How can you ask? Is it possible that in America they do not understand?" He went on in unmeasured terms, saying that the war had not been fought to a finish, that justice had not been done, that Germany had not been made to pay, and the possibility of future war had not been eradicated. America, he said, had come into the war two years late, and in the last four days too late, making peace at the first opportunity instead of insisting upon finishing in Berlin. America quit the day of the armistice, without waiting to see the thing through."

I listened to him without interrupting, my surprise increasing as he warmed to the subject and let loose the whole force of his relentless, imperious, pro-French bitterness, his bitterest engendered perhaps in a small measure by the loss of a beloved and only son.

The Americans, he went on, "could have helped, but they just did not want to. They should have been there as soon as they were invited, and they have all our gold. They lent us money at 8 per cent and made good business out of it. It was a humiliation to recall that the allies owed the war to the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

He said that John Hay had once given him, when he asked for it, the explanation of the standardization of industries, clothes and opinions in the United States. "It was not so much the immigrants," he said, "as the fact that the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

"Go and see," he said. "Go and see it all for yourself; you will learn much. But—begin with France."

KIPLING DECEIVES HIMSELF: HIS DIATRIBE SEEMS TO ME UNJUST, CLEMENCEAU SAYS

DISCUSSING Rudyard Kipling's attack on the United States' part in the war, former Premier Clemenceau in an interview with the Petit Parisien correspondent, says:

"Kipling deceives himself. I like Kipling. He is a great writer whom the war cruelly hurt. But his diatribe seems to me unjust."

The result of German propaganda. Those who adopt the attitude that Germany is "down and out" and cannot pay are again the victims of German propaganda. He described it as the war still going on, but underground, as the result of its not having been fought to a finish. Germany, he insisted, has a well-kept, well-dressed, well-armed, well-sized army, reduced taxation, and the minimum of unemployment.

"I have heard Kipling described as the best propagandist the French have got. He unconsciously explained himself when he described his battlefields visit with the King. There is much psychological revelation in a person's attitude toward a tall hat, and also by his attitude toward the King."

Kipling admitted that it was humorous to stand on Vimy Ridge on a baking hot day attired in a tall hat and all the clothes that go with it. He described how he had to stop his car and drag his suitcase into a farmhouse and change into his tailcoat on receipt of the news that the King was unexpectedly near.

Upholds Tall Hat Tradition.

I called to comprehend the importance of the thing. "How could you?" I said. But Kipling loyally upheld the tall hat tradition. "How else could I stand next to the King?" he said, and added, "My King!" which utterly alienated me.

"Before 1880 America was a nation," he said, "but at that time Abraham Lincoln went into a war to determine whether the negro should be worked or not, and lost 2,000,000 of the population. The 2,000,000 were the pick of Europe. They were the people whose ancestors had braved the long journey in sailing ships, they represented the courage and the strength. America was flooded with immigrants, and instead of 50 immigrants, 800 came in every ship, and in more ships. America was flooded with aliens of the wrong type. America—the real America—died in 1860."

He said that John Hay had once given him, when he asked for it, the explanation of the standardization of industries, clothes and opinions in the United States. "It was not so much the immigrants," he said, "as the fact that the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

"Go and see," he said. "Go and see it all for yourself; you will learn much. But—begin with France."

AMERICANS COULD HAVE HELPED, BUT THEY DID NOT UNDERSTAND; HOW COULD THEY? THEY LENT US MONEY AT 8 PER CENT AND MADE GOOD BUSINESS OUT OF IT.

Criticism Called Unjust.

"Any such criticism is unjust, mischievous and futile," said Frederic Harrison, distinguished historian and authority on international law. Baron Buckmaster, former Lord Chancellor, said Kipling's statement "carries its refutation upon its face." The criticism is out of place and the man who says the world is oblong or flat.

Alfred G. Gardiner, for years editor of the Daily News, said Kipling's attack represents a private animus. America lent at 8 per cent, England at 5 per cent. Is 3 per cent difference saving or losing a soul? In splitting on Lincoln's name, Kipling defiles himself. Lincoln sought to preserve the American nation from the tragedy of Europe. He succeeded gloriously. England reverses his memory."

"I find it difficult to believe that Kipling can have spoken in the terms you report," said J. Alfred Spenser, editor of the Westminster Gazette. "Some Englishmen may have difficulty in understanding America's action since the war, but none can fail to appreciate the part she played in the war. A nation which has just voluntarily subscribed $52,000,000 for the relief of Russian famine may be relied on to remember its soul and to act generously in its own time."

Lincoln's Endeavor Praised.

Baron Charnwood, the English historian of Abraham Lincoln, said: "My firm opinion has been sufficiently published that slavery is the worst solution of a race difficulty; that Lincoln's own endeavor in that matter was supremely wise and that he made America nationhood possible. My modest opinion about America in the war and since will be equally published before long. On neither subject will I enter into controversy with Rudyard Kipling, whose high patriotism, poetry and width of human sympathy should be the common glory of those who speak the English language."

Commander Hob. Joseph Montague Kenworthy, R. N., a Liberal Member of Parliament, extremely active mentally and physically, said: "Kipling's assault would be amusing if it were not so mischievous. He has long been the exponent of the blatant sin in England and he should not be taken seriously. For example, he says, America quit on the day of the armistice. The fact is that American troops proceeded to the Rhine immediately after the armistice and are there today. Obviously, there is inaccuracy at the very start. Furthermore, it is quite unlikely that America will ever recover a dollar of the costs of her Rhine expedition."

Statement Merely Silly.

"Kipling says we have saved our soul, but America has not. This is merely silly. America was in no danger from Germany. She was not obliged to enter the war. But she went in, as England did, on behalf of certain ideals which she saw threatened. Her soul is all right. When the war was over she refused to accept any peace which would have left her soul flatly refused to ratify the most iniquitous peace treaty ever drafted in the history of the world."

"In short, one should get a hearty laugh at Kipling's assertions, which flourish unchecked, and has drawn to itself the support of a large number of voters of determined self-respecting Republicans and independent voters and is seeking the support of the Democratic party and voters on a program of fusion of their respective county tickets for the purpose of insuring a change in the officialdom of St. Louis County. We believe that such a movement and program will be in the best interests of our Government, our homes and the morals and life of our citizenship and therefore should be encouraged and aided in every legitimate manner."

Voting Strength Analyzed.

The voting strength of various factors in the county was analyzed by Adam Henry Jones, Democratic nominee for Prosecuting Attorney, who said that if the Clean Election League is forced to put a ticket without Democratic support in the field, the probability is that not enough votes could be drawn from the Republican machine and the "vote-or-straight" Democrats to defeat the machine. All of the Democratic voters he has spoken to on the subject, he said, have favored fusion. He said that he knew it had been the intention of many "good" Republicans after the primary to vote the Democratic ticket, but that they would naturally favor independent, or fusion, candidates.

Ed Tiffin, nominee for County Clerk; Ed Stanton, nominee for Central Township Constable; Miss Byrd Anne York, candidate for Circuit Clerk; and James A. Harwood, Fusion member of the Central Committee, advocated fusion, as did two practicing physicians, who deplored "their present cover."

MAPLEWOOD MEETING DECLARES FOR FUSION

Resolution Adopted Calling Upon Central Committee to Back Joint Ticket "in People's Interest."

Two steps were taken yesterday toward deciding the current political question in St. Louis County of whether a "mongrel" Democrat is a Democrat who advocates the fusion ticket proposed by the Clean Election League to fight the Republican machine or a Democrat who acts to accomplish the ends of the Republican machine.

For be it known that the Democrats are calling each other "mongrel" in the county. Fusion members of the County Central Committee of that party have held up a fusion ticket sought for fusion candidates. "Results forced upon the voters of the Democratic party on their ticket. On the other hand, they have been called "mongrel" Democrats for this very action, which was said to be a move toward defeating everybody but the Republican machine."

Action in Maplewood.

Maplewood Democrats, at a mass meeting last night, evidently taking the latter view, unanimously voted a resolution calling upon their Central Committee to support the fusion ticket in general to support the fusion as "the best means offered to restore to the people of St. Louis County the control of their government in the interests of the whole people and to the adjusted service certificate option, lawlessness and protected vice that has been found to exist within our borders."

This followed the selection, by the Executive Committee of the Clean Election League yesterday afternoon in 1922 Equitable Building, of a Central Committee constituting the league as a party with the right to put its own ticket in the field. The plan of the league is to give the Democratic Central Committee until next Tuesday to agree to a fusion and then to place the league ticket in the field. If the Democrats do not come in, the league announces, it will go on without them.

The attitude of Democrats at the meeting, which was held in the building until recently occupied as the Maplewood City Hall, was expressed in the resolution as follows: "Results forced upon the voters of the Republican party of St. Louis County through the bold and audacious acts of a boss-controlled election machinery in the recent primary, an occasion reeking with fraud, unscrupulous and dishonestly, have made necessary the formation of a new political party, as a protest against the further continuation of methods of the gangster and election thug."

"This party is now organized under the name of the Clean Election League, on a platform demanding honest and clean elections and enforcement of the laws against gambling and the traffic in liquor, which flourish unchecked, and has drawn to itself the support of a large number of voters of determined self-respecting Republicans and independent voters and is seeking the support of the Democratic party and voters on a program of fusion of their respective county tickets for the purpose of insuring a change in the officialdom of St. Louis County. We believe that such a movement and program will be in the best interests of our Government, our homes and the morals and life of our citizenship and therefore should be encouraged and aided in every legitimate manner."

PROVISION FOR PAYMENT OUT OF INTEREST ON DEBT AND LAND RECLAMATION PLAN STRICKEN OUT.

President Probably Will Get Chance to Approve or Veto Within the Next Two Weeks.

By the Associated Press.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The soldiers' bonus bill is today in the form that it will go to President Harding, perhaps within 10 days or two weeks. Provisions added by the Senate and believed by some proponents to make it possibly more objectionable to the executive than it was as passed by the House were eliminated by the conferees, who met unexpectedly yesterday.

Those provisions were: Payment of the bonus out of interest from the $11,000,000,000 foreign debt and the Smith-McNary reclamation plan.

Will Wait on Tariff.

The bill is to be reported to the House today, but action on it, both there and in the Senate, is to follow disposition of the conference report on the tariff measure.

The conference also limited the time in which veterans might file application for a bonus to Jan. 1, 1923. They accepted the House provision fixing the amount to be advanced for farm or home aid to the amount of the adjusted service credit increased by 25 per cent in the place of the Senate plan or amounts ranging from 100 per cent of the adjusted service credit if the application were made in 1923 to 140 per cent if application were made in 1925 or thereafter.

No important change was made in the adjusted service certificate option, lawlessness and protected vice that has been found to exist within our borders."

This followed the selection, by the Executive Committee of the Clean Election League yesterday afternoon in 1922 Equitable Building, of a Central Committee constituting the league as a party with the right to put its own ticket in the field. The plan of the league is to give the Democratic Central Committee until next Tuesday to agree to a fusion and then to place the league ticket in the field. DIGESTIBILITY OF FOODS NOW TESTED WITH GLASS JAR

Government Experts Develop Artificial Stomach That Imitates Work of Human Organ.

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Experts of the Department of Agriculture have developed an "artificial stomach" to test the digestibility of foods. A glass jar is used instead of the human stomach.

"It is now possible to determine the digestibility of the protein in foods, and whether it is necessary to cook them, without conducting feeding tests, thus saving much time and expense," the specialists assert. By the use of certain laboratory apparatus, it is explained, it "is possible to imitate at least a part of the digestive processes."

Here is the plan: The proteins to be tested, those from beans, for instance, are placed in glass containers in a dilute solution of hydrochloric acid, similar to that found normally in the stomach. The proper quantity of pepsin is added, and the mixture is placed in an incubator, where the temperature is kept at the same point as that of the human stomach, about 37 degrees Centigrade.

After a certain number of hours the contents of the container are sampled and analyzed. The digestive effect is measured by the ratio of what is known as amino-nitrogen to total nitrogen. By running through cooked and uncooked protein from beans it is possible to determine which is the more easily acted upon by the chemicals in this artificial stomach, and consequently by the stomach itself.

"After the food has been acted upon by the pepsin and hydrochloric acid, it is treated with trypsin and a dilute alkaline solution as nearly as possible like the digestive juices found in the small intestine. This second process tells the investigator what the probable digestive action on any particular food will be in the intestine."

The department experts assert that the "artificial stomach" will tell if one protein is more digestible than another and whether it is more digestible when cooked or raw.

STATE PRIMARY SYSTEM ASSAILED AT CONVENTION

Constitution Commission on Elections Advocates Return to Old Method of Selecting State Candidates.

PRESENT LAW SAID TO BAR POOR MAN

Special to the Post-Dispatch.

JEFFERSON CITY, Sept. 12.—The constitution convention late yesterday began consideration of the proposal to restore the convention system of nominating candidates for all State offices. The Commission on Elections and Suffrage in its report recommended that nominations for State offices be made by convention, while the manner of nominating candidates for county and city offices was left optional with the Legislature.

E. N. Meador of Cassville and George H. Williams of St. Louis county, spoke in favor of the return of the convention systems. Williams launched a vigorous attack against the present primary system. He declared that persons desiring to control nominations can do it through the primary systems better than in a convention because they do not have to "bribe" their constituents and "can work under cover."

Just before the convention adjourned Albert M. Clark of Richmond, offered a substitute amendment to provide that nominations for all State offices in districts composed of more than one county shall be made by convention. He said the purpose of his substitute was to clarify the situation, as at present some doubt as to the manner of nominating candidates for the Legislature under the section recommended by the committee.

Clark, in his argument in favor of restoring the convention system, declared that under the primary system minorities can control nominations, that the cost of primary elections in Missouri is $1,000,000 to $2,000,000, that the system is forced to spend enormous sums. He said that the primary system has closed the door of public office to the poor man, who cannot afford to "bribe" his constituents in a State-wide campaign.

Statement by Williams.

"I have always felt that the primary law as such was wrong for psychological, practical and political reasons," said Williams. "It is the governmental system in many states and is based on the idea that the ill of democracy are necessarily cured by more democracy. That conclusion does not follow. Our forefathers instituted a representative form of government, with the idea that the duty and responsibility of government should be cast upon the chosen representatives elected for that purpose."

"Members of legislatures in various states did not seem to be responding to the obligations thus cast upon them and the proponents of the primary then arose. It is their idea that government and the right of government resides in the mass, and that the mass always should retain the power of government in their own hands. It is true that eternal vigilance is the price of their liberties, and it is largely for that reason that we insist upon thoroughgoing and comprehensive systems of public education."

"The truth is it does not follow that the actual work of government itself should reside in the mass of the population, because the mass has neither the preparation nor the ability to do the work of government. The anti-French sentiment for transacting the business of government, and it is no discredit to them to say so. The stockholders of a corporation elect directors and the directors elect officers, and the officers and directors run the business. This does not mean that the stockholders are not interested in and may not have an intelligent understanding of the things done by their officers and directors."

Costing Men for Office.

"Again, it was not the theory of our forefathers and should not be our theory that men should call themselves to office. The true theory was and now should be, that men should be called to office. All men who have been interested in the affairs of government know that it is usually the weakest men and the least fitted men who are apt to call themselves to office."

Political Parties.

"Again, politics in our country is run by political parties. State and Federal laws everywhere recognize the existence and responsibility of political parties. Courts take judicial notice of their existence and their obligations and rights. The effect of a primary is to relieve political parties of all sense of party responsibility for the selection or election of its candidates."

"A man is a candidate for the nomination for Governor or for Senator. Does he run as a candidate on the platform for a political party?"

By CLARE SHERIDAN.

Special Correspondent of the New York World and Post-Dispatch.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—I motored recently with my children to the Rudyard Kipling for tea. I asked him about his recent visit to the battlefields of France in company with the King, which had resulted in a poem called "The King's Pilgrimage." I wanted to know what he meant by the last verse, and especially by the last two lines of that verse:

All that they had they gave—they gave—
In sure and single faith.
There can no knowledge reach their grave.
To make them grudge their death.
Save only if they understood.
That after all was done
We they redeemed denied their blood

"America Came In Too Late."

I said to him, "You are not a radical, a Socialist, nor a pacifist—why do you say that we mock at that which our men died for?"

"How can you ask? Is it possible that in America they do not understand?" He went on in unmeasured terms, saying that the war had not been fought to a finish, that justice had not been done, that Germany had not been made to pay, and the possibility of future war had not been eradicated. America, he said, had come into the war two years late, and in the last four days too late, making peace at the first opportunity instead of insisting upon finishing in Berlin. America quit the day of the armistice, without waiting to see the thing through."

I listened to him without interrupting, my surprise increasing as he warmed to the subject and let loose the whole force of his relentless, imperious, pro-French bitterness, his bitterest engendered perhaps in a small measure by the loss of a beloved and only son.

The Americans, he went on, "could have helped, but they just did not want to. They should have been there as soon as they were invited, and they have all our gold. They lent us money at 8 per cent and made good business out of it. It was a humiliation to recall that the allies owed the war to the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

He said that John Hay had once given him, when he asked for it, the explanation of the standardization of industries, clothes and opinions in the United States. "It was not so much the immigrants," he said, "as the fact that the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

KIPLING DECEIVES HIMSELF: HIS DIATRIBE SEEMS TO ME UNJUST, CLEMENCEAU SAYS

DISCUSSING Rudyard Kipling's attack on the United States' part in the war, former Premier Clemenceau in an interview with the Petit Parisien correspondent, says:

"Kipling deceives himself. I like Kipling. He is a great writer whom the war cruelly hurt. But his diatribe seems to me unjust."

The result of German propaganda. Those who adopt the attitude that Germany is "down and out" and cannot pay are again the victims of German propaganda. He described it as the war still going on, but underground, as the result of its not having been fought to a finish. Germany, he insisted, has a well-kept, well-dressed, well-armed, well-sized army, reduced taxation, and the minimum of unemployment.

"I have heard Kipling described as the best propagandist the French have got. He unconsciously explained himself when he described his battlefields visit with the King. There is much psychological revelation in a person's attitude toward a tall hat, and also by his attitude toward the King."

Kipling admitted that it was humorous to stand on Vimy Ridge on a baking hot day attired in a tall hat and all the clothes that go with it. He described how he had to stop his car and drag his suitcase into a farmhouse and change into his tailcoat on receipt of the news that the King was unexpectedly near.

Upholds Tall Hat Tradition.

I called to comprehend the importance of the thing. "How could you?" I said. But Kipling loyally upheld the tall hat tradition. "How else could I stand next to the King?" he said, and added, "My King!" which utterly alienated me.

"Before 1880 America was a nation," he said, "but at that time Abraham Lincoln went into a war to determine whether the negro should be worked or not, and lost 2,000,000 of the population. The 2,000,000 were the pick of Europe. They were the people whose ancestors had braved the long journey in sailing ships, they represented the courage and the strength. America was flooded with immigrants, and instead of 50 immigrants, 800 came in every ship, and in more ships. America was flooded with aliens of the wrong type. America—the real America—died in 1860."

He said that John Hay had once given him, when he asked for it, the explanation of the standardization of industries, clothes and opinions in the United States. "It was not so much the immigrants," he said, "as the fact that the foreign immigrants who got together and lived and thought in herds as a protection against their loneliness and their isolation."

"Go and see," he said. "Go and see it all for yourself; you will learn much. But—begin with France."

AMERICANS COULD HAVE HELPED, BUT THEY DID NOT UNDERSTAND; HOW COULD THEY? THEY LENT US MONEY AT 8 PER CENT AND MADE GOOD BUSINESS OUT OF IT.

Criticism Called Unjust.

"Any such criticism is unjust, mischievous and futile," said Frederic Harrison, distinguished historian and authority on international law. Baron Buckmaster, former Lord Chancellor, said Kipling's statement "carries its refutation upon its face." The criticism is out of place and the man who says the world is oblong or flat.

Alfred G. Gardiner, for years editor of the Daily News, said Kipling's attack represents a private animus. America lent at 8 per cent, England at 5 per cent. Is 3 per cent difference saving or losing a soul? In splitting on Lincoln's name, Kipling defiles himself. Lincoln sought to preserve the American nation from the tragedy of Europe. He succeeded gloriously. England reverses his memory."

"I find it difficult to believe that Kipling can have spoken in the terms you report," said J. Alfred Spenser, editor of the Westminster Gazette. "Some Englishmen may have difficulty in understanding America's action since the war, but none can fail to appreciate the part she played in the war. A nation which has just voluntarily subscribed $52,000,000 for the relief of Russian famine may be relied on to remember its soul and to act generously in its own time."

Lincoln's Endeavor Praised.

Baron Charnwood, the English historian of Abraham Lincoln, said: "My firm opinion has been sufficiently published that slavery is the worst solution of a race difficulty; that Lincoln's own endeavor in that matter was supremely wise and that he made America nationhood possible. My modest opinion about America in the war and since will be equally published before long. On neither subject will I enter into controversy with Rudyard Kipling, whose high patriotism, poetry and width of human sympathy should be the common glory of those who speak the English language."

Commander Hob. Joseph Montague Kenworthy, R. N., a Liberal Member of Parliament, extremely active mentally and physically, said: "Kipling's assault would be amusing if it were not so mischievous. He has long been the exponent of the blatant sin in England and he should not be taken seriously. For example, he says, America quit on the day of the armistice. The fact is that American troops proceeded to the Rhine immediately after the armistice and are there today. Obviously, there is inaccuracy at the very start. Furthermore, it is quite unlikely that America will ever recover a dollar of the costs of her Rhine expedition."

Statement Merely Silly.

"Kipling says we have saved our soul, but America has not. This is merely silly. America was in no danger from Germany. She was not obliged to enter the war. But she went in, as England did, on behalf of certain ideals which she saw threatened. Her soul is all right. When the war was over she refused to accept any peace which would have left her soul flatly refused to ratify the most iniquitous peace treaty ever drafted in the history of the world."

"In short, one should get a hearty laugh at Kipling's assertions, which flourish unchecked, and has drawn to itself the support of a large number of voters of determined self-respecting Republicans and independent voters and is seeking the support of the Democratic party and voters on a program of fusion of their respective county tickets for the purpose of insuring a change in the officialdom of St. Louis County. We believe that such a movement and program will be in the best interests of our Government, our homes and the morals and life of our citizenship and therefore should be encouraged and aided in every legitimate manner."

Voting Strength Analyzed.

The voting strength of various factors in the county was analyzed by Adam Henry Jones, Democratic nominee for Prosecuting Attorney, who said that if the Clean Election League is forced to put a ticket without Democratic support in the field, the probability is that not enough votes could be drawn from the Republican machine and the "vote-or-straight" Democrats to defeat the machine. All of the Democratic voters he has spoken to on the subject, he said, have favored fusion. He said that he knew it had been the intention of many "good" Republicans after the primary to vote the Democratic ticket, but that they would naturally favor independent, or fusion, candidates.

Ed Tiffin, nominee for County Clerk; Ed Stanton, nominee for Central Township Constable; Miss Byrd Anne York, candidate for Circuit Clerk; and James A. Harwood, Fusion member of the Central Committee, advocated fusion, as did two practicing physicians, who deplored "their present cover."

Two steps were taken yesterday toward deciding the current political question in St. Louis County of whether a "mongrel" Democrat is a Democrat who advocates the fusion ticket proposed by the Clean Election League to fight the Republican machine or a Democrat who acts to accomplish the ends of the Republican machine.

For be it known that the Democrats are calling each other "mongrel" in the county. Fusion members of the County Central Committee of that party have held up a fusion ticket sought for fusion candidates. "Results forced upon the voters of the Democratic party on their ticket. On the other hand, they have been called "mongrel" Democrats for this very action, which was said to be a move toward defeating everybody but the Republican machine."

Action in Maplewood.

Maplewood Democrats, at a mass meeting last night, evidently taking the latter view, unanimously voted a resolution calling upon their Central Committee to support the fusion ticket in general to support the fusion as "the best means offered to restore to the people of St. Louis County the control of their government in the interests of the whole people and to the adjusted service certificate option, lawlessness and protected vice that has been found to exist within our borders."

This followed the selection, by the Executive Committee of the Clean Election League yesterday afternoon in 1922 Equitable Building, of a Central Committee constituting the league as a party with the right to put its own ticket in the field. The plan of the league is to give the Democratic Central Committee until next Tuesday to agree to a fusion and then to place the league ticket in the field. If the Democrats do not come in, the league announces, it will go on without them.

The attitude of Democrats at the meeting, which was held in the building until recently occupied as the Maplewood City Hall, was expressed in the resolution as follows: "Results forced upon the voters of the Republican party of St. Louis County through the bold and audacious acts of a boss-controlled election machinery in the recent primary, an occasion reeking with fraud, unscrupulous and dishonestly, have made necessary the formation of a new political party, as a protest against the further continuation of methods of the gangster and election thug."

"This party is now organized under the name of the Clean Election League, on a platform demanding honest and clean elections and enforcement of the laws against gambling and the traffic in liquor, which flourish unchecked, and has drawn to itself the support of a large number of voters of determined self-respecting Republicans and independent voters and is seeking the support of the Democratic party and voters on a program of fusion of their respective county tickets for the purpose of insuring a change in the officialdom of St. Louis County. We believe that such a movement and program will be in the best interests of our Government, our homes and the morals and life of our citizenship and therefore should be encouraged and aided in every legitimate manner."

Still for League.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
In your issue of Sept. 7, 1922, you published the attitude of some of the delegates to the Democratic State convention toward ex-President Woodrow Wilson and the League of Nations, as indicated by their replies to your circular of Aug.
23, 1922, in which you asked these two questions: (1) "Will you, in the Democratic State convention, support a platform plank specifically endorsing the League of Nations?" (2) "Will you, in the Democratic State convention, support a platform plank specifically indorsing the two administrations of Woodrow Wilson?" You published my answer to the first question, but failed to publish it to the second. I think that it was unfair to publish one answer without publishing the other.

Two years ago I supported, both with my votes and with my influence, the candidates who were in favor of the League of Nations. In the primary election of 1922 I supported a candidate for United States Senator who had publicly asserted himself to be in favor of the League. I am still in favor of the League, and if the opportunity ever arises when I think it would be expedient, I will again, both by my vote and by my personal influence, support the League. However, it seems to me unwise at the present time to submit a platform in which the League of Nations is specifically indorsed. The primary election of 1922 clearly indicates that a great majority of the people of Missouri do not want to enter into the League of Nations as now constituted. For these reasons, I answered the first question in the negative. My answer to the second question was in the affirmative. I will vote for a plank which specifically indorses the two administrations, ex Woodrow Wilson. I think a convention composed of Democrats could not do less. To me, Woodrow Wilson is the foremost American citizen. His record as a President of the United States will always stand out as one of the greatest administrations in our country.

I shall appreciate your giving this letter the same publicity you gave my answer to your circular.

Very truly yours,
W. A. BROOKSHIRE, Candidate for State Senator, Twenty-sixth District.

A Costly Injunction.

To the Editor of the Post-Dispatch.
As a free American citizen, I want to protest against the United States Attorney-General's injunction. The Attorney-General swore in over 5000 deputy United States Marshals. The salary of a deputy is $9 a day. Every State in the Union has State guards, in case of trouble, and the Federal Government has national guards. Then, why has the Attorney-General sworn in 5000 deputies?
The local deputies in every district in the country were able to serve the legal matter without the aid of the 5000 or over deputies. Talk about wasting the taxpayers' money! There's never was so much wasting done since the world war. Mr.
Daugherty should be impeached. Every railroad company was able to protect its property with its own guards, and it was not sufficient, then the State would have assisted the railroads. If it wasn't for Mr. Daugherty's foolish move, the strike would have been settled long ago.

G. A. R.'s Organization.

I NOTICED an article in your paper a few days ago which indicates that the G. A. R. was first instituted in Indianapolis, Ind., by Benjamin F. Stephenson of Decatur, Ill.

The facts are as follows: During the Civil War and at its close, we Republicans had a society known as the Union League. It was not a secret society, so all our doings became publicly known to our foes, the Copperheads, and we realized that we needed a secret band to oppose the K. K. K., which was becoming very strong in opposing the Union. B. F.
Stephenson of Bloomington, Ill., had been advocating for some time the formation of the returned Federal soldiers into a secret society to be known as the "Grand Army of the Republic."

He tried to organize it in Bloomington, but met with no encouragement. He then tried Springfield, with no better success. He then came to Decatur, where he interested Barney Hamsher, the editor of the Republican newspaper, who vigorously advocated the plan and called a meeting of the Union League to consider it.

The league almost unanimously favored it and appointed a committee to prepare articles of incorporation and confer with Mr. Stephenson on a ritual, which was approved and ordered printed by Mr. Hamsher, and we were installed by Mr. Stephenson as "Camp No. 1 of the Grand Army of the Republic." (The name Camp was later changed to Post.)
So here in Decatur originated the G.
A. R., which in a few years grew into a membership of hundreds of thousands and accomplished much good in assisting the Government in again securing peace and harmony throughout the country.

I consider it a great honor that I was the second soldier initiated in the G.
A. R.

WILSON A. LAFAM.

A DEMOCRATIC RETREAT.

The ignoring of the League of Nations by the Democratic platform convention which meets in Excelsior Springs today is foreshadowed in the expressions of opinion obtained from delegates and committeemen who will control the convention. It is intimated that there will be a compromise on the indorsement of the Wilson administration, accompanied by an indorsement of all other Democratic administrations, from Jefferson down, to wash out any significance that may be attached to the indorsement of the Wilson administration. It will be a perfunctory, formal and traditional act, signifying nothing.

If the convention ignores the League of Nations issue and fails to indorse the Democratic platform of 1920, it will mark the abandonment by the Missouri Democratic of a great cause—a cause vitally affecting the welfare of mankind and the progress of civilization—the support and advocacy of which reflected the highest credit upon the party. It was a course involving the question of world peace and world prosperity, in which we are indissolubly bound, and the future of civilization—whether it shall go forward toward justice and liberty and peace or backward toward war and barbarism.

In referring to the League of Nations we are not bound to the precise form of the covenant adopted at Versailles. The Post-Dispatch has not been and is not now a hard and fast supporter of the Wilson League as originally framed. We urged him to accept reservations and have in mind a sound and workable covenant which will promote justice and peace between nations; which will establish international law, foster arbitration and insure co-operation of all the civilized nations against aggression. We are not for a victor's league but a league of all nations, victor and vanquished, who will join in reducing armaments and minimizing the chances of war by conference, mediation and arbitration.

We realize that the Democrats of the State face a difficult situation. The logic of Senator Reed's nomination is the repudiation of any sort of league of nations. All the arguments of expediency and vote-getting are marshaled on the side of repudiation.
For success this year it is urged that the party must be unified and friction allayed, so principle must be sacrificed to political power and a great cause to the spoils of office.

These sordid arguments are softened by the plea that the League is not an issue this year and that nothing the Democratic party can do will accomplish anything while the Republican party is in power. But when was a great cause not an issue until it was won? When can a party abandon its principles and its ideals and high purposes without sacrificing its soul and conscience? The time to fight for a good cause is not in prosperity, but in adversity. No great cause involving human welfare against selfish and partisan interests was ever won by abandoning it when conditions seemed adverse for immediate success. This policy puts party above country, above principle and above public welfare.

The League of Nations is not dead, but is passing through a critical period. We showed in our Sunday review of its record that it is alive and working. It is not what it ought to be, but it is proving what it might become with the participation of America and the admission of all civilized nations.

It is America that is threatened with death—the death of the spirit and of its ideals and noble aspirations. It is the soul of America that must be saved.

An excellent illustration of the view of the liberal statesmen of Europe concerning the necessity of the League and the necessity of persistent effort to perfect and strengthen it is found in the address of Hjalmar Branting, the Premier of Sweden, on the occasion of the receipt of the Nobel peace prize, which the Living Age reproduces. Mr. Branting quotes Nobel's will and a letter written to Bertha von Suttner outlining the purpose of his peace prize and expressing the conviction that a union of all nations could guarantee peace. He said:

It is remarkable how the fundamental ideas of Alfred Nobel recur in the Covenant of the League. I have already quoted the words of his will specifying the ways to bring about a brotherhood of nations: reduction of armaments and peace congresses. A general reduction of armaments is, as you know, recommended in Article VIII of the Covenant, though in guarded terms; and the annual meetings of the League's Assembly are official peace congresses, which are binding upon the participating states, to a degree that a quarter of a century ago most statesmen would have regarded as Utopian.

He said further:
Nobel's last remark, about an alliance of all the states instead of a few of them, should be an exhortation for us today not to weary in our efforts to make the existing League of Nations universal so that it may truly fulfill its mission. No nation is so great that, in the long run, it will be able to remain outside a League that is thus becoming world-wide.
In conclusion he quotes these simple remarks of the

WITH BOTH FEET.

late James Bryce, who was one of the foremost champions of peace, in advocacy of a league of peace as a necessary factor for the preservation of civilization:
The obstacles are not insurmountable. But in any case we must attack them, because they are after all much smaller than the dangers which will continue to threaten civilization if present conditions persist. The world cannot be left where it is. If the nations do not try to destroy war, war will destroy them. Some sort of united action on the part of all the states that value peace is absolutely necessary; and instead of retreating before the difficulties, we must recognize this necessity and press forward.

This is the hope of the world. If the Democratic party, under whose administration the war was won and the League of Nations was born, loses faith and courage, and sacrifices its splendid cause to cowardice and political expediency it will miss its greatest opportunity for service and forfeit public confidence and respect. Its present leaders will be discredited, but the cause will march on. Worthier hands will carry the banner of world peace to victory.

WHILE WASHINGTON FIDDLES.

A delegation headed by a United States Senator has appealed to President Harding to take steps to prevent the slaughter of a million noncombatant Christians in Asia Minor now left by the defeat of the Greek army at the mercy of the Turks. The present status in this region, says the appeal, has been brought about "only through the criminal indifference of the so-called Christian and civilized nations in Europe."
"In the face of this calamity, threatening the Christians of Asia Minor with total extermination," continues the statement, "the duty of our country is to follow her generous and noble traditions, and extend a helping hand to our brothers."

It is not to be expected, of course, that the United States would go to war with Turkey or with France or England to save the unoffending Christians in Asia Minor. No such measure would be needed to keep the Turk, a member of the alliance which we fought in France, in check. There are other ways to influence the trend of European affairs, but they are not to be found in a feeble, groping, isolationist policy.

Great Britain and France, the pillars of the Entente, are on their tiptoes with anxiety to keep in the good graces of America. Each of them owes us a huge sum of money on which we have the right to foreclose at any moment, but which we do not hope to be able to collect soon if ever. American financiers believe we would do ourselves a favor to remit this debt to encourage continental rehabilitation and build up a vast new foreign trade. But there is no reason why, if we cancel this obligation, we should not require concessions which would advance world peace and serve humanity. The present situation in Asia Minor looks like an opportunity to save a million lives. What better evidence do we wait of our trading power at the present juncture than Clemenceau's announced visit to the United States to plead the cause of France?

Yet, with the greatest power and advantage of any nation in the world, with an opportunity seldom if ever paralleled in history to strengthen the foundations of peace, set the war-shocked world economically on its feet, restore the prosperity of the nations, prevent further starvation and misery and save a million Christians from Turkish ferocity, our Government in Washington is upholding our "noble traditions" by a policy of negation, isolation and complete paralysis both of action and idea.

ABOLISHING THE LABOR BOARD.

Representative Hoch of Kansas has introduced a bill to abolish the Railroad Labor Board and set up in its stead what he calls a "disinterested tribunal." Attention is directed in Washington dispatches to the fact that Mr. Hoch, as a member of the committee that framed the transportation act, was one of the creators of the Labor Board and his present bill, therefore, is an instance of a statesman disowning his legislative child.

It will hardly be claimed, though, that the Railroad Labor Board, as now constituted—the railroads, employees and the public all being represented—has failed because of its personnel. If the Labor Board has failed, is not its failure due to the pleasing assumption that public opinion would give the force of law to its findings? Would a board differently constituted have any better success? And just what is meant by a "disinterested tribunal," anyway?

It seems probable that the transportation act will be amended, as the President has recommended and as experience suggests. But no amendment should be proposed unless it could be shown that its adoption would be likely to strengthen the law. The Hoch bill seems to be proposing a change without any promise of improvement.

THE HOMERID.

WHEN Homer smote his lyre,
The Greeks were no such topic;
Great Jove with his celestial fire
Beamed unbelievers on the coo.
Achilles, having had his Mocha, Resplendent in his bullhide sweater—
As we say, all to the good—
Made Greece superb when times were better.

How proudly Ajax bore his bludgeon—
The Babe Ruth of another season!
How grudging Fate, that grim curmudgeon,
Glimpsed whose deeds had such rependence,
Past thought of apathy or treason,
When Greece, more souful then, more Attic, Praise Jove, had neither flies nor fleas on,
And Homer was so damned ecstatic.

Of Greece today, the less the better—
Her one-time glory has departed;
And what inspired the college letter—
Great emprise then—is deftly thwarted.
The old-time Greeks, those lion-hearted
Glimpsed whose deeds had such rependence,
E'en Jove, whose deadly lightning darted,
Apparently, have no descendants.

Someone has observed that dogs bark much more furiously at Ford than they do at Packards, Pierce-Arrows, Rolls Royces and more expensive makes of automobiles. If this is true, it enables us to understand much better than we have understood why dogs bark. A dog barking at a Rolls-Royce would be merely working, but a dog barking at a Ford would be doing more than barking. He is laughing, which is what we all do, though a dog has fewer means of expressing laughter than we do.
Maybe if we had more devices like Fords we would reach a complete understanding of dogs, something for which man has longed ever since the dog became his companion.

The Pelican in a New Role.

A friend of mine was rambling around the bird cage in Forest Park, when he noticed a sparrow, that had somehow gotten through a mesh of the wire enclosure, attempt to fly across the inner space. The course of its flight was right over the head of one of those lazzaroni pelicans—"plaffkin, pluffkin, pelican gee."

Quick as a flash that pelican nabbed the sparrow in midair, pounded it to death on the ground, plucked its feathers, sowed it in the pond and swallowed it! Would you think an awkward-looking wader like the pelican could catch a swift bird like the sparrow on the wing? It did.

It seems to me this is somewhat of a departure from the pelican's habit of feeding on fish.

TRANSPORTATION PROBLEM.

FLOYD W. PARSONS in World's Work.

NOTHING is needed more just now than active educational campaign designed to press everyone with the fact that adequate transportation service is the key to prosperity in country during the months to come. If we content to go ahead on the low scale of industrial activity that prevailed last year, then we concern ourselves so greatly about railroad terms. But if we have faith in the idea that for a business advance, then it is absolutely essential that each person shall do his part promptly, and no more care should be taken out for shipments, and then remove the from the station as soon as they arrive. Car-ships should be accepted promptly and im-

WOMAN CAUSES HOTEL RAID

Five Men and Woman Arrested at 1428 Market Street.

Five men and a woman were arrested at the Woodford Hotel, 1428 Market street, at 7 p. m. yesterday, when police raided the place following complaint made by Mrs. Marie Johnson, 48, a widow.

Mrs. Johnson said she had rented a room at the place yesterday and within half an hour three men had forced entrance to her room. She finally demanded protection at the hotel desk, she said, and was told to get out and her money refunded. One of the men arrested in the raid was the clerk of the place, Samuel A. Mathers, 24 years old.

BELIEVE ROBBER WAS SHOT BY ACCOMPLICES

Eleven Wounds in Body of Dead Man; Arcade Jeweler Says He Fired but Four Times.

Detectives investigating the case of Leo Giesecke, 24 years old, a police character, who died at the city hospital yesterday as the result of bullet wounds inflicted when he and another man attempted to hold up Edward Gotsch, in the latter's jewelry store in the Arcade Building at 10 a. m. Sunday believe that at least six of the 11 bullets which struck Giesecke were fired by his accomplices. They also believe that three men were implicated with Giesecke in the attempted robbery.

Gotsch, who is at the city hospital in a serious condition from bullet wounds in the neck and right hand, told the detectives that while he saw only one man with Giesecke, he was sure that between 15 and 20 shots were fired at him, which caused him to believe that perhaps two other robbers were in the hall acting as "lookouts." He said that he fired only four shots and that the bullets which entered Giesecke's back must have been fired by the men in the hall, who evidently were shooting in an effort to assist Giesecke and the other robber to escape.

Robbers Dropped Revolver.

Gotsch identified one of the automatic pistols found in his store as his property, but it was the one from which no bullets had been fired. The other automatic, which had been discharged, he said, evidently belonged to the robbers. Gotsch said he fired his shots from a revolver which also was found in the store.

A verdict of justifiable homicide, based on the presumption that Gotsch had killed Giesecke, was returned today by a coroner's jury, which reviewed the police reports.

A police photograph of Giesecke has been identified as that of one of three men who had been sought by detectives in connection with the reported thefts of sunglasses valued at $125 from a store of the M. Bond Tailoring Co. at 624 Delmar boulevard, last Wednesday.

GEORGIA WOMAN IN RACE FOR ASSEMBLY WITHOUT PLATFORM

Says Candidates Have Always Been Willing to Accept Any Doctrine That Time Develops.

ATLANTA, Ga., Sept. 12.—"Candidates have always been willing to accept any vote-catching doctrine that time develops," in the opinion of Miss Bessie Kempton of Fulton County, one of the three women in Georgia running for the General Assembly to be nominated in the State Democratic primary, next Wednesday.

"And for this very reason," she declared, "I am making my campaign without a platform."

The pretty young candidate, who also is a newspaper reporter, said she has "some virtually definite ideas in reference to new and remedial legislation needed by Fulton County and the State, but issues that are alive and uppermost in public thought today are entirely likely to be among the things forgotten when the Legislature of 1923 meets."

Miss Nettie Powell of Marion County and Mrs. Viola Nagler of Cobb are the other two women candidates for the assembly.

9 REPORTED KILLED IN RIOT IN POLISH UPPER SILESIA

Miners Said to Have Overpowered Police; Soldiers With Machine Guns Disperse Them.

LONDON, Sept. 12.—Eight miners and one policeman were killed in a number of persons injured in a riot at Bismarckhutte, Polish Upper Silesia, yesterday, according to a Berlin dispatch to the Times.

The trouble began when miners objected to being paid in Polish marks, hitherto having received their wages in German currency. They overpowered the police and when soldiers with machine guns arrived the mob stoned them.

The soldiers fired and numbers of persons fell. The mob scattered. Military reinforcements arrived and order was restored.

INTERNATIONAL FAIR AT VIENNA

Effort to Show Harsh Conditions Do Not Affect Austrian Skill.

From a Staff Correspondent of the Manchester Guardian and the Post-Dispatch and New York World.

VIENNA, Sept. 12.—The third international Vienna fair opened here Sunday with no lessening in the number of exhibitors, although there were fewer foreigners. The fair is to show that Austrian skill, ability and taste are not affected by the harsh economic conditions.

New features include a special exhibit of Austrian inventions. Another innovation is the exhibit of the building industry with plans and models of houses, building machinery and roads. The foreign countries best represented are Germany, Italy and Switzerland.

TAX COLLECTOR COURT BAILIFF

Alton Officer on Duty in Court as Murder Trial.

John Berner, Tax Collector of Alton, today began his duty as temporary bailiff in the Madison County Circuit Court at Edwardsville, where jurors are being selected to hear the evidence in the murder trial of Deputy Sheriff Patrick J. Nalty, slain in Granite City July 22.

Four jurors have been selected from the 204 taxmen examined, the others having been disqualified.

Berner makes the third bailiff in the court. His appointment was made necessary by the many summonses for jury service being served.

PART THREE.

WHAT DID YOU SEE TODAY?

Volunteer Reporters Tell the Post-Dispatch of the Interesting, Unusual and Often Humorous Incidents They Encounter.

ADMIRATION for the ability of some blind persons to take care of themselves, and curiosity as to the degree of blindness in the case of some persons who ask charity for this reason, are shown frequently in letters received by the What-Did-You-See department.

PERCEPTION.

I saw a man with a sign reading "I am Blind." A lady passed him head of me, and stopped to deposit coin in his cup, and the man said, "Thank you, lady."

MISS TILLIE SIGOLOFF, 1184 North Vandeventer avenue.

USED DANGER.

I saw a blind woman selling pens, and as she wanted to cross the street, a man took her arm to lead her across. When they were in the middle of the street, an automobile passed the corner, and the blind woman pulled away from the man and ran.

J. M. MARTIN,
5845 Delmar boulevard.

OWN CASHIER.

I saw two boys helping an elderly man, carrying a "Help the Blind" sign, to get across the street. When they reached the corner, the man sat down and played an instrument, while the boys collected money. When the boys returned, the man went a short distance away, took off his glasses and appeared to be counting his money. He gave each boy a nickel, put on his glasses and went away.

ALICE ALLEN,
4417 North Market street.

"MAW" WAS WISE.

Yesterday mother bought five bushels of peaches. Brother and I were to help peel them. We thought we had it fixed to get out of the chore by having some chums call for us. Instead mother called the chums in and put them to work, too!

RICH MILLER,
5515 Idaho avenue.

READY HOUSEWIFE.

The gas man called recently at a West End home to read the meter. A few days later another came and said he was an inspector. The maid let him in the basement. The mistress, very excited, decided suddenly it couldn't be a real inspector, for one had been there but a few days before. The maid locked the basement door, while the mistress got a revolver, and only after the inspector had shoved his badge through a crack in the door would they let him out. He explained that an error of some kind had been made by the other inspector.

FRANK KILLOREN, 4120 Westminster pl.

LADDIES LAGGED.

I saw the chauffeur of our fire department truck stop at the homes of volunteer firemen to get them on a way to a fire.

JAMES KELLY,
3863 Oxford av., Maplewood.

EXTRA TRIMMING.

A woman walking ahead of me at Sixth and Washington wore a hat on trimmed with flowers, on which was perched a beautiful black butterfly. As I looked, it flew away.

MRS. N. B. T.

SO, BOSS.

While standing at Broadway and Chouteau I saw a herd of cows being driven by. Suddenly one of the cows broke away and plunged into the big drinking fountain at that corner. It took five men to get her out, she enjoyed it so much.

RALMOND A. DERBY,
1112 S. Fourth street.

WHAT THE HOTEL?

At Cuba, Mo., near the Frisco tracks, I saw a large excavation in the middle of which is a sign, "This Hotel For Sale."

MAXINE BLOCK,
2822 Market street.

NERVOUS CITIZEN.

I was riding with my uncle about 11:45 one night when he turned the corner of Clara and Cote. He put out his arm for the signal, and a man standing on the corner put up his hands. Evidently he thought we were bandits.

LORENE DETER,
5784 Theodora avenue.

PEOPLE READ 'EM.

I saw eleven passengers on the Bellefontaine car reading the "What Did You See Today" column. I can verify this by two other persons who counted them with me.

MARJORIE BAILEY,
1322 Hebert street.

FLEAS THROWN IN.

I, carrying a music roll, had a collision on a corner downtown with a man carrying a puppy. I dropped my roll and he dropped the puppy.

Simmons Creates this Colonial Four Poster Built for Sleep $30.00 each more exquisite design than this charming new Colonial Four-Poster has never been produced even by Simmons, with their well-known reputation as designers of beautiful beds.

The "Madison"—all the rich simplicity of the Colonial atmosphere and with it all the modern sleep qualities of Simmons Beds built for sleep.

In a variety of beautiful wood finishes, this bed has the unmistakable "hand rubbed" character of the Colonial Period. Not the least remarkable factor is the low price at which your dealer can sell you this distinguished Simmons creation—so admirably fitting into the various types of bedroom furnishing.

A bed of cultivated antique charm—and like all Simmons Beds, the "Madison" is built for sleep. Foursquare, firm, noiseless, sanitary—ensuring quiet restful sleep all night, every night. Price $30.00 each.

Simmons Beds—Built for Sleep $8.00 to $75.00
Simmons Springs—Built for Sleep $5.50 to $50.00
Simmons Mattresses—Built for Sleep $10.00 to $60.00
Purple Label upholstery with hair—$95.00

Be sure to see the Simmons Label on Bed, Spring and Mattress before you buy. The Simmons Label is your assurance of sleeping equipment built for sleep. All genuine Simmons Beds, Springs and Mattresses have it. No others have.

The "Slumber King" Spring
Utilizing the elasticity of metal slats to balanced combination with the resilience of bedstead.

Very graciously and politely he picked them both up, gave me the puppy and started away with my music roll. I had to call him back. Was he trying to get rid of the puppy.
BETTY BOLHOFFNER, 4322 Athlone avenue.

PIPE ALL HANDS.

I rode behind a Ford touring car in which a family of four was riding. At each corner and every stop four arms would fly out in various directions. The whole resembled a spider making a dash for life.

FRANK RAUCHENSTEIN, 239 South Meramec street, Clayton.

KEEP THE MOISTURE IN.

I was sitting in a hotel lobby when a man drove up to the hotel in a one-horse rig during a rain storm. In his shirt sleeves. He got out of the rig, carried his raincoat into the hotel and put it on, remaining inside until the rain stopped.

HARRY HILL, Centralia, Ill.

TILTING BOSSIE.

In Colorado I saw a cow which refused to be milked unless her forefeet were planted in a feed stall about three feet from the floor. She will amble into this position each morning and evening, and wait patiently to be milked.

F. BROWN,
4454A Penrose street.

A QUESTION MARK.

I saw an old lady have the butcher in a corner meat market weigh and price every small piece of meat in sight, while customers waited. She still hesitated, and the butcher burst out, "You don't want to buy; you want to take inventory."

MRS. GEORGE BECK,
2710A Arkansas avenue,
(Credit P.-D. Milk and Ice Fund.)

TOO MUCH ADVICE.

While I was standing in front of a butcher shop a middle-aged woman came up and read the sign on the door, "Back in a minute." She asked me, "Why do you have to back in, can't you go in frontwards?"

MRS. JESSIE REINECKE,
Kane, Ill.

A HONKED-AT TRYST.

Every day a young man and girl sit on the railing along the sidewalk across from my home at the noon hour, and upon as if there was no one around. Machines pass by and toot their horns, but that never phases them. When the noon hour is over they leave, with arms clasped around each other's waist.

M. E. HOELSCHER,
2548 University street.

OR FLIVVERED.

I saw an elderly man and woman looking up and down the hitching rack for their horse, and buggy. After they had made a thorough search she looked up and said to her husband, "Pa, we walked to town."

MILDRED WILLMS,
St. Elmo, Ill.

A COURSE OF READING.

Day after day I have observed a man walk into a downtown restaurant at the lunch hour, with a book under his arm. He would stand the book before him on the table and read while consuming his lunch in an automane manner. I often wondered how this man's office hours were spent.

C. E. FARRELL,
Odd Fellows' Building.

LITERARY PADDING.

I ate dinner at a friend's home the other evening. She had a new dining room table and did not care to have it marred. So she used her little girl's story books for pads for the hot dishes.

MRS. JOE STEINMAN,

While waiting to be waited on at a department store I saw a woman buy two spoons of threat for eight cents, which she wished to have charged. The floorman had to be called to O.K. the slip.

MARGIE WILLIAMS,
Glencoe.

SHOCK TACTICS WIN.

This morning on a crowded car, I saw a husky middle-aged woman, carrying only a small package tap a comfortably seated man on the shoulder and request his seat. She got it.

A Talk to Mothers—Not Frivolous,
But Thoughtful Mothers.

Each winter season brings coughs, colds, catarrh, pneumonia, "flu" and tuberculosis. Loving mothers dread the onslaught of these diseases.

 Thoughtful mothers

Here is a simple inexpensive way - practiced by over 300,000 mothers during the past twelve years, is a great volume of literature. Not later than the first cold or rainy spell, they make up a full pint of home made pure and cold medicine - using 8½ oz. of the pure Eucalypti Extract mixed with 1½ oz. of sugar syrup or honey. Costs less than $1.00.

Mentho-Laxene is so pure - contains no chloroform, opium or narcotic drugs, that it is given to infants without harm. Children and adults like its delicious flavor. It is unusually quick action in stopping colds and coughs before the dangerous complications set in.

Resolve to be a "Thoughtful Mother". Get Essence Mentho-Laxene today and drive the cold and cough away. Best ever sold for cough and cold. Send 5 cents for sample.

GIRLS! LEMONS BLEACH THE SKIN

Recipe for a Lemon Lotion
Used to Whiten and Beautify

Squeeze the juice of two lemons in a bottle containing three ounces of Orchard White, which any drug store will supply for a few cents, shake well, and you have a quarter pint of harmless and delightful lemon bleach. Massage this sweetly fragrant lotion into the face, neck, arms and hands each day, then shortly note the beauty and whiteness of your skin.

Famous stage beauties use this lemon lotion to bleach and bring that soft, clear, rosy-white complexion, also as a freckle, sunburn, and tan bleach because it doesn't irritate.

will keep your scalp clean and healthy and give your hair the life, luster and luxuriance nature intended.

FOUR FIRES RESULT IN LOSS PUT AT $26,000

$10,000 Damage, Mostly by Water From Sprinkling Systems, in Downtown Blaze Last Night.

Four fires last night and early today, all of undetermined origin, caused damage estimated at $26,000, mostly by water, resulted from a fire which started at 3:45 p. m. in the rear of the Style Fit Skirt and Dress Co., which occupies the second floor at 1231-37 Washington avenue. Automatic sprinklers of five other firms in the building were set off by the fire, resulting in damage by water to the stock of the Jackway-Katz Cap Co., the N. Friedman & Son Clothing Co., Schleber Millinery Co., Harris-Polk Hat Co., and the Sloan-Vorce Hat Co.

Fire starting in the workshop of the Century Ornamental Glass Co., 5039-41 Delmar boulevard, at 11:49 p. m., damaged stock approximately $3000 and the building $2000, according to Francis R. Lowther, president of the company.

At 1:15 a. m., starting in the foundry department of the Lewin Metal Corporation, 23 Branch street, caused damage to the building and its contents estimated by William Lewin, president of the firm, at $10,000.

Henry Vreeland of 532 Wilmington road, estimated the damage at $1000 in a fire in the garage in the rear of his home at 3:30 a. m. Vreeland said damage to the garage was about $500, and a similar amount to his automobile.

WOMAN SEEKS $25,000 FOR HURT TO EYE BY GOLF BALL

Alleging that a golf ball driven by W. Hemker of 5117 Cabanne avenue struck her in the right eye while she was in a canoe on the lagoon at Forest Park last June, destroyed the sight of that eye and permanently impaired the vision of the other, Miss Anna Newman of Fall River, Mass., yesterday filed suit here for $25,000 damages against Hemker, the City of St. Louis and B. H. Offer and Edward F. Jansen, who have the boating privileges at the park.

Miss Newman, who formerly resided in St. Louis, charges negligence against the city in permitting golfers to drive across the lagoon, against the concessionaires for not telling her of the danger, and against Hemker for driving where canoeists might be hit.

Mexicans Restore Baptist Property.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—The municipality of Saltillo, Mexico, has restored to the Foreign Mission Board of the Southern Baptist convention virtually all of the property seized by the city government from the Mission Board of 1917, acting Secretary Phillips of the State Department yesterday reported to Senator Harris of Georgia.

Sisters Absolve Detroit Man.

MACON, Ga., Sept. 12.—Mrs. J. Garbett Starr and her sister, 15, Miss Vallette Lamar, have returned to their home. Mrs. Starr absolved E. C. Graham, a Detroit traveling man, who has been held in connection with their disappearance.

In New York the Club Royal Orchestra is heard at one of that city's gayest and most exclusive dinner clubs.

CLUB ROYAL ORCHESTRA

New Grand Central Theater

September 9th to 15th

Through a co-operative arrangement between the New Grand Central Theater and the Victor Dealers of St. Louis.

ONE of the show places of New York's night life is that famous and exclusive dinner club, the Club Royal. And now the brilliant dance orchestra that forms the center of attraction at the Club Royal has come to St. Louis for a brief stay. To hear this orchestra is to hear dance-music at its scintillating best. Genuine musical thrills are in store for all who visit the New Grand Central Theater this week.

The Club Royal Orchestra Makes Victor Records

To make Victor Records is an honor that many dance orchestras strive for, and that but few achieve. Clyde Doerr and his musicians reached this goal nearly a year ago, and they have proved themselves increasingly deserving of it.

One of their first Victor Records was "The Sheik," that superb fox trot with its subtle and compelling Oriental melody that is still frequently heard wherever dancers gather. Hit after hit has been scored by the Club Royal Orchestra and broadcasted through the land by means of the black discs which the Victrola brings magically to life.

And the popularity of the Club Royal Victor Records has been due as much to the manner of the orchestra's playing as to the music itself. The following is a list of

"The Sneak"

—a new fox trot, is the Club Royal Orchestra's latest and most unique dance-hit. Clyde Doerr gets in some of his best ground-and-lofty saxophone work in it, and from start to finish it's about the most enjoyably creepy bit of music you've ever heard. Victor Records of "The Sneak" have just recently been released. Your Victor dealer has them.

KATHARINE NEWLIN BURT

Q stepped quickly into the room. At the entrance, Sophie's father looked up from a frightened contemplation of the girl, and Dr. Sales rose from a chair near the bed. Benton locked the door and placed himself against it.

Q moved to the foot of the bed and bent his eyes upon Sophie. He was white and scared.

"What happened?" he asked in a nervous whisper.

Dr. Sales was spokesman.

"You would probably have got away with it, my man," he said. "If there hadn't been a fire in the hotel. The curtains of Miss Benton's room just below this one caught fire. There was an alarm and—your victim, naturally fearing that she would be burned to death, was frightened out of her wits. She had managed to get rid of your ingenious gag and she screamed for help. After a while her people here located her cries and, with the help of a fireman, broke down her door and tossed her in this terrible condition. Her wrists—as you see—were cut almost to the bone; her neck is raw where the rope burnt her. But of course the worst result of your brutal handling is to her nervous system, perhaps to her mind. We haven't been able to get a sane word out of her. We insist now, sir, upon a full accounting from you."

Q faltered to Sophie's side and bent over her. He was shaking from head to foot; all his splendid composure and aplomb had left him.

"You—Sophie get," he urged and put his hand beseechingly upon her.

She stared up at him from wild eyes and shrieked out: "Don't let him hurt me!" He shrank back and was further propelled by the head waiter, who, darting round the bed, struck at him with two frenzied fists. Q threw up his hands. He had a dazed look. But behind the brilliant pain and fright of his eyes, his brain was working coolly and carefully. He mustn't, of course, betray Sophie's attempted indiscretion; he mustn't tell about the drummer. There was really no explanation he could give. She was in no condition to read Laurie's letter, nor could he trust any one of these three guardians of hers to read or to deliver it. As usual, he had only the old familiar weapon—silence. Holding back gently with one hand Sophie's infuriated father, and looking quickly from one to the other of the two men, he drew out his reasonably.

"I ain't blamin' you at all gentlemen. It's just the way I feel myself. I her sure made a fool of myself, maybe worse. I can only tell you that it ain't any of it her doin'."

It was a fool experiment of mine with needles and back of it—just plumb childishness, but you don't want to believe that, naturally. So I ain't expectin' you to keep your hands off me, because I don't want a row, and tell her what you want to do. Keep rememberin' that for the girl's sake, you'd better make as little excitement as possible. I couldn't feel better 'n I g' right now, if that helps your feelin' any, and I'll do anything you say."

"First," spluttered Benton, "you get out of my hotel and don't show your dirty face here again."

"I thought you'd sold your hotel, Mr. Benton."

"Q—Q—Don't talk back to me. Until the new owner takes possession I'm in charge here and—your walk out!"

"Yes, sir, and quite right. Next."

And he turned to Sophie's father. The pumpled waiter was breathing short and hard. "Damage," he mumbled, "that's all I g'tter say."

"Damage," he pointed to the girl, lying quiet under the effects of a narcotic. "You may of ruined my girl for life. You g'tter pay."

"Yes, sir. That's fair, too. I'll pay. And now—do!"

Here his columns came to something that was both ice and iron. He drew closer to Sophie. The big loose figure held its ground and answered softly.

"I'll see you outside, Kinwydden. I believe it would be altogether unwise for you to leave Stuyvesant at once. Some version of this story is bound to get about the place. You see, the fireman helped to break down the door."

For the first time a fear of the consequences of this episode to himself and to his own plans smote Q and flushed his whiteness.

"There," he said to its getting about in its best clothes, wouldn't you, doc?"

He glanced once at Sophie and went out into the hall, followed by Dr. Sales. They faced each other in the hallway.

"I shall certainly see that the story reaches the minds of any one who might otherwise be inclined to admit you to their acquaintance," Mr. Kinwydden said. He passed, his hands shaking as he walked; as small, spark-like eyes flashed.

"As I once warned you, I have run two young men already out of Stuyvesant."

Q seemed not to have heard him. "The—Sophie get—will get all right," he faltered, and Dr. Sales, smiling faintly, turned the corner.

"If she doesn't die in convulsions, she will recover physically, but I doubt if she ever gets back her poor disordered wits."

Q leaned against the wall, his hand over his eyes; his forehead slowly was covered with fine small beads of sweat. "O God, that ain't the truth, doc. I know you hate me like a rattler, but I want you please to let me off on that. It ain't the truth."

"As far as I know, it is the truth. Your methods are a bit too rough for us here in Stuyvesant."

"I ain't agoin' to put my trust in you," said Q. He said it twice, like a prayer, a sort of litany. He felt for Laurie's letter in his pocket and then moved blindly toward the stairs.

"It is entirely owing to our consideration for the poor girl's good name, you understand, Kinwydden, that we are allowing you freedom from physical restraint. I hope you understand that you are not to be allowed to remain any longer in this place." Suddenly he became vengeful.

"We've had enough of you."

"I better not quit, had I, until we know how the Sophie get gets on?"

"Perhaps not. If she dies—"

Silence. Q stood straight, like a soldier waiting for execution.

"You may be wanted for manslaughter. Hush!" — for lightning had passed through the tall, lissome figure—"they're bringing the girl out of your room. You will want to go back for your things."

The door of Room 96, in fact, had slowly opened, and between them, the head waiter and Benton carried Sophie along the hall. Dr. Sales and Q stood to see her pass, a peaceful, silent, broken figure.

CHAPTER XX.

Sanctuary.

RUMOR'S tongue quickly took up the tale. It hardly needed Dr. Sales' liberal assistance, so fast it spread through all the ranks of Stuyvesant society. Q, moving over that very night to Mrs. Stopper with his bag in his hand, was met at the door by a nervous, quickly breathing figure—"they're bringing the girl out of your room. You will want to go back for your things."

"No, no, Mr. Kinwydden, indeed I can't let out a room to you. I know I told you I had one and I'm real sorry, but it isn't possible. Not that I'm ready to think you'll give any head to scoundrels, but that what a story comes direct to you and—didn't I always say that it couldn't be done—"

Not in civilized society, calling on Miss Holme Grimscombe at the house time of all. It's really too much to ask. I'll bring Miss Selma's pride down to the dust and I'm not saying it won't be a wholesome lesson, but my business is to support the columns of society, Mr. Kinwydden, and kind as you are about Sweetie and a pleasant visitor, I don't owe you any obligations—Oh, are you going like that without a word?"

Q paused on the step and looked back at the excited little figure. The street lamp lighted it dimly from in front and the electric bulb in the hall more brilliantly from behind. It looked under the two lights a solid small body enough, resisting radiance. As Q looked, Sweetie ran out of the house and rubbed against them and purred in an emphatic key. He picked it up and, smiling, handed it to its owner.

"I don't know rightly what I can say, Mrs. Stopper," he murmured, "except that I think you for your cake and tea parties."

"Then you can't explain any of it? Perhaps I could take your story to Miss Grimscombe."

"No. But thank you kindly. I was a plumb fool, and I look like a plumb villain, and it can't be helped—"

For the present, I'll pack my stuff elsewhere—he hesitated—"or perhaps I can leave it here and come back for it when I've located a good camping-ground."

"Why, Mr. Kinwydden, I don't know what to say—people seeing it there—as they say—actions speak louder than words and it might lead to inquiries which I'm sure I was wanting a room to you."

"I savvy. Good-night to you, ma'am."

She came half-across her porch, frantically brushing at the imaginary crumb. "But I'd be the first to welcome you back if the clouds roll past, Mr. Kinwydden," and doubtfully she added a "Good-by."

"Oh, it ain't good-by," he said from the gate, which he had just reached. "It's just good-evening."

And he went swiftly down the street.

It was 11 o'clock when he came to Mary Grimscombe's door. He was still carrying his bag and his shoes were dusty. The door stood open and Q, setting down his burden, stepped in and came to the threshold of the tiny sitting-room. Directly before him, blocking his path, loomed Dr. Sales.

"I might 'a' known," said Q, and turned to go.

Dr. Sales moved back across the room and disclosed Mary rising with a flushed face and startled eyes from her low chair beneath the lamp, and Mr. Grimscombe peering above steeled finger-tips. Q saw the small, familiar room suddenly through a blur. He made out an instant later that Mary was standing in front of him, holding out her hand. He took it with a quick, wordless gasp.

Then Sales spoke.

"Mary! Mary!" he said, and checked his tongue.

Mary turned from Q, keeping her hand upon his arm, and threw the concentrated brightness of her face upon Sales.

"You didn't really think papa and

Long Life and Living

By Winifred Black

HE'S old—oh, very old—83 or something—and he gets up very early every morning and splits the kindling for the fire, and when the lawn needs cutting he cuts it, and if there's an errand downtown, down to the little store he goes, and back again, and never dreams of sitting at home and being waited on because he is no longer young. Somebody heard about him the other day, and he was interviewed, and he said that the reason he keeps young so long was that he never wasted his breath talking.

I wish I could have seen the reporter's face when the honorable and ancient thus expressed himself.

Can't you just see the funny, self-important, irritable old man—telling the world how not to live, and proud of it?

Ninety-eight, is it, my good sir? Well, tell us, what have you done with your 83 years? Have you spent them grudgingly as a miser spends money?

Have you saved your energy and saved your love and saved your temper, and saved your money, and saved your time, and saved everything on earth—even your life?

Have you grudged yourself friends, hope, love, responsibility, faith, for fear they might cost you one of your precious years?

Have you turned your back on joy, turned a light heart and his brother, a merry laugh, outdoors, and turned the key on them, just because you were afraid they might cost you a dollar or so or a year or so?

Well, then, let me tell you, my ancient friend, you haven't lived 90 years at all, you haven't even lived 20 years—really.

You've just eked out a meager existence like a poor little starved mouse, creeping around the edge of the wall in the daylight, and gnawing timorously in the dark at night. What's life for—but to be lived?

Why be born at all, if you're going to waste your body and your mind and your heart—yes, and your very soul—in swaddling clothes, and keep them wrapped so forever?

I'd rather live 20 honest, good-hearted, courageous, laughing, crying, hoping, despairing, trusting and being deceived, falling and getting up again, tiring and falling, loving and losing years, and be done with it and die on my twenty-first birthday, than creep a mean, narrow, shallow-hearted, cold-blooded, grudging, suspicious, stingy path through the world and fool myself into thinking I was really living.

I know a man who never lets himself hope for anything. He says he's afraid he'll be disappointed. Start on a picnic with him on the sunniest morning in the world, and he's always looking for clouds and predicting that it's a bad sign when the sun shines too early in the morning.

Ask him if he likes the path of the moon on the water and he'll look at you with a sour smile, trying to see what sort of trap you're laying for him.

Poor Philosophy.

Show him a rosebush, a-bush with loveliness, and he'll find a green worm in the heart of one of the roses. And he thinks he's wise—poor thing, what a fool he is, spreading poison on his daily bread and drinking from his cup of life nothing but distrust and fear and cynical amusement at the expense of every hopeful heart.

I'd rather die at 20 with a dozen disappointments in my young heart than live to be 90 with such a disposition for company.

Save your breath and save your life—is that your motto? Dear friend Methuselah, somehow, it does not appeal to me in the least.

How Boadicea Fought the Roman Empire for Britain

BOADICEA was a British Queen who lived before the reign of the Emperor Nero, famed for her wickedness and cruelty. She was the wife of Prasutagus, King of Icen, who ruled the people inhabiting the coast of Britain. How Boadicea, because of her deep love for her two daughters, marched at the head of an army, is a favorite British story.

Before Prasutagus died in 60 A. D. he willed his fortune to the Emperor Nero and to his two daughters, whom he loved very dearly. This was at a dangerous time in the history of Icen, and Prasutagus thought that in sharing his fortune with Nero he would insure the safety of his family.

Immediately after the death of King Prasutagus, Nero sent his officers to seize everything the King had left. When Boadicea protested against the seizure, she was seized and taken to Rome. She was publicly whipped. Another order followed which demanded that she turn her daughters over to the mercy of Nero's soldiers.

Boadicea determined that she would defend before she would see her children subjected to such cruelty. Mustering the Britons and asking them to follow her, Boadicea started forth to battle against the army of Nero. She believed that the yoke of Rome had been around her countrymen long enough and that not only would her daughters be saved, but that many other innocent victims would be released if the Britons struck.

Inspired by the courage of Boadicea, the small army fought bravely. They marched upon the colony of Camulodunum of Colchester and won a victory.

Boadicea saved her daughters, although finally Suetonius Paulinus hastened from the Isle of Mona with 10,000 men to aid Nero, and defeated the Britons in a later battle.

Shortly afterward Boadicea died from poisoning. It is claimed by some that the poison was taken in an attempt at suicide. Others wonder if it could be true that a woman as brave as Boadicea would end her own life.

Chicken a la Valenciana

THE chicken is cut to pieces. It is fried in hard until it is a golden color. When half fried, peeled garlic, an onion, pepper and a clove should be thrown in with a teaspoon of salt. When the chicken is fried, it is put in a dish with water, and while boiling, the rice is thrown in, with a couple of large, sweet, red, Spanish peppers. It is left well covered until dry and well cooked. Serve hot and garnish the dish with whole, Spanish peppers and parsley. To give it color, a pinch of saffron is thrown into the liquid.

I was going to turn Q out, did you?" she asked, "because of the story you've just been telling us? In the first place, I'd have to hear his side of it; in the second place, I don't turn away a friend when he's in trouble."

And "Good-night, William," said Henry Grimscombe, speaking suddenly from Mars.

Fashion News Notes

NEW YORK—Everything today indicates that autumn costumes will not be so lavishly decorated. But the few bits of decoration used must be of exceptional brilliance and of striking design.

NEW YORK—New and more fantastically beautiful are today's patterns on the autumn crepes. The palefay design with its varied and delightful tints has been taken over by the crepe, which will thus continue the vogue for a bit of Paisley to set off an otherwise somber costume. Crepe de chine, no less in favor even after its long vogue of the spring, is seen now in broad Egyptian colors.

NEW YORK—Jersey frocks are another fashion feature which has "come back" in response to popular demand, after the modistes had declared it officially "out." The newer Jersey frocks being worn this week end are in delightful autumn shades, such as wood, Java brown, dull red and pheasant.

LONDON—One of the dashing autumn styles is that which requires a coat to be radically different from the skirt, a style which originated with sports clothes. A velvet skirt, almost entirely plain, was seen on Strand, worn in combination with a coat of the new Persian curl cloth. The skirt was one shade and the coat of a shade slightly darker. With such a coat, which is often only a couple of inches shorter than the skirt, is invariably less wide than the skirt.

NEW YORK—One of the Fifth Avenue shops is displaying a stunning hieroglyph gown. The foundation is black crepe de chine. The gown is made on straight and simple lines. All over it the quaintest of Egyptian figures are embroidered in white, the effect being a good deal that of an Theban temple wall.

BURGESS BEDTIME STORIES

A Sad and Lonely Little Fox.

By Thornton W. Burgess

Who thinks he doesn't care will find That soon or late he'll change his mind.—Old Mother Nature

SLEEP is a blessed thing. The most of troubles are forgotten in sleep. It was so with little Mr. Smarty, the young Fox who had been told by his mother that he would have to live alone. He had crept back into the house without eating his supper for he had no appetite. He was lonely, frightened and very miserable. He was sure that he wouldn't be able to close his eyes that night.

He sat down on the doorstep and licked his lips.

But he did. In fact he fell asleep almost at once. You see he was so used up that not even night could keep his eyes open. All night he slept. He didn't wake up until jolly, round, bright Mr. Sun was well up in the blue, blue sky. That long sleep did him a world of good. When his eyes first opened he didn't remember what had happened. He missed his brother and sisters and wondered if they were outside playing. Then that dreadful Skunk smell brought everything back to him and he remembered that he had been left alone. Loneliness and fright returned to him, but he was hungry. Yes, sir, he was hungry. His stomach had been empty so long that now it demanded food.

So in spite of his misery little Mr. Smarty crept up to the doorway to see if the supper he hadn't been able to eat the night before was still there. It was, and beside it lay two more fat Mice. His mother had brought him his breakfast. Little Mr. Smarty ate all four Mice. It was surprising how much better he felt. He sat down on the doorstep and licked his lips. But for that dreadful smell he would have felt almost happy. His eyes still smarted a little, but he could see all right and this was a relief.

"I don't care if I have got to live alone," boasted little Mr. Smarty to himself. "It will be fun. I can do just as I want to. I like it. I do so. I can sleep when I please and where I please, and there won't be anybody to bother me. I will have everything all to myself."

He curled up on the doorstep for a sun bath and for a while he really didn't mind being there alone. But by and by he became tired of lying there doing nothing. He wanted to play and there was no one to play with. He tried playing with a stick. He tried pretending that he was hunting. But there is no fun playing alone and little Mr. Smarty soon gave this up.

He wandered about uneasily. He didn't dare go far from that home. He wondered what his brother and sisters were doing. He wondered if they were down on the Green Meadows hunting grasshoppers and Meadow Mice with their father and mother. He wondered if his mother would remember to bring him plenty of food.

My, how hateful that Skunk smell was! He spent a long time cleaning his coat, and when he was through the smell was as strong as ever. When he could think of nothing else to do he went back down into the house and tried to sleep again. That was of no use. He wasn't sleepy. Besides, it smelled worse down inside that house than it did outside.

So out he came again and once more began to wander about restlessly. He was tempted to try to find that old house to which his father and mother and brother and sisters had moved, but he didn't quite dare do that. He was afraid he might get lost. He was even more afraid that if he should find it he would be driven away. So as jolly, round bright Mr. Sun climbed higher and higher in the blue, blue sky little Mr. Smarty grew more and more sad and lonely.

Minced Veal With Green Peppers

CUT a thin slice from the stem ends of two medium-sized green peppers, remove the seeds and white pith. Cook in slightly salted water ten minutes. Drain, cool and cut in short narrow strips (about one inch long). Mix with two cups of cold cooked veal cut in small cubes. Melt three tablespoons of flour, stir until well blended, then pour on gradually one cup of white stock or chicken broth mixed with one-third cup of cream. Add veal and peppers. Season with salt, pepper and serve in puff paste party shells or on hot lightly toasted circles or triangles of bread, spread thinly with butter. If chicken broth is not at hand, use pint cans of consommé or bouillon.

THE AUTHORITY ON HOME COOKING
Wave You May Repair Some Cookery "Disasters"

The way to make this soup so that it will not curdle is to cook the tomato, onion, celery and seasoning until done, then strain them. Make a rather thin cream sauce and add a saltspoonful of soda to the milk. This prepares it for the addition of the hot strained tomato, which is next turned in. Let the soup boil up once

Any dish made with milk which is allowed to scorch is a total waste, as the taste is offensive and nothing will eliminate it. For this reason, it is best to cook milk in a double boiler and pay strict attention to it until the dish is completed.

BEAT three egg yolks very light. Stir in very gradually three-fourths cup of rich buttermilk. Add one-half teaspoon salt, a dash of red pepper or paprika, two tablespoons tarragon vinegar and the stiffly beaten whites of eggs. This is delicious with lobster, crab or any other fish.

SOAK half a pound of evaporated apples overnight. The next morning boil until very tender. Add two tablespoonfuls of butter, a little salt, a spoonful of cinnamon and two tablespoonfuls of sugar. Purée through a puree sieve, reheat thickened and add two tablespoonfuls of cream.

S OAK one-quarter of a box of gelatin in one-half cupful of cold water until softened. Whip until stiff three cupfuls of heavy cream in a bowl standing in ice water. Add one-third of a cupful of chopped nuts, three-quarters of a cupful of powdered sugar and one teaspoonful tin one-fourth of a cupful of hot water and dissolve over hot water. Pour the dissolved gelatin over the cream and stir the whole until well mixed. When the mixture begins to thicken pour into a mold and sprinkle with chopped nuts.

A woman may well wonder where the average man gets some of his ideas about household affairs. The one, for example, that women are unprogressive—that labor-saving devices for the home find little favor with the majority.

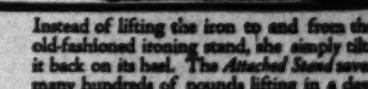

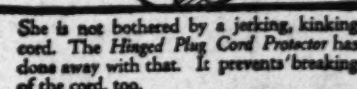

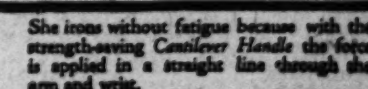

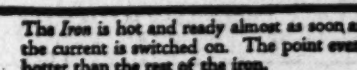

How, for instance, does he think it has come about that so many women are as untired after ironing day as on any other day of the week. While his mother was always "all fagged out" after a session at the ironing board.

Perhaps he realizes, too, that supper

MY FAVORITE STORIES

By IRVIN S. COBB.

THE REAL POINT OF THE JOKE.

TWO American performers, filling vandyville engagements in London, took lodgings together in a house on a side street back of Covent Garden. Late at night, following the first day of their joint tenancy, they left the theater in company and, having had a bite and a drink at a chophouse, set out afoot for the new digs. One of the pair undertook to show the way. The trouble was, though, that for the life of him he couldn't recall the name of the street where the house stood nor the number of the house itself. For nearly an hour they wandered through deserted byways seeking their destination. Finally they happened upon a street which bore a familiar look. And, sure enough, half way down the block stood the house where they were quartered.

With glad cries of relief the tired pair hurried to it. Here a fresh difficulty arose. They had no latch keys. Coming away that afternoon neither had thought to ask his landlady for a key. However, the second man figured he could pick the lock. He worked at it vainly for another half-hour, while his companion fidgeted about. Finally, in disgust and despair, he gave it up as a bad job, and the two of them went to a hotel, where they spent the remainder of the night.

Now comes the point of the story: The man who could not remember the name of the street nor the number of the house was Barton, the Memory Wizard. The man who could not master the lock was Houdini, the Locksmith King.

HOLLISTER, Mo., Sept. 12.—Three men held up the Bank of Hollister at 10:45 a. m. today, Leon J. Clippard, State Bank manager, was at work checking the count of the bank, and escaped $2200. They started for the south-arkansas state line in an automobile after looking Clippard and two others in the bank vault.

The robbers overlooked a thousand dollars' worth of U. S. Bonds which were lying loose on the counter in the vault. One of the men entered the vault and ordered Clippard to hold the bank at the time, Cashier Ham Stafford and Mrs. C. W. Moore, wife of a bank officer, were on the floor of the bank. A man stood on guard over them. The first man gathered up $2200 currency, gold and silver. The man remained in a Ford roadster outside the bank.

Clippard and the other two were locked in the bank vault. Some entering the bank a few minutes later were unable to use the vault door. At this juncture W. Moore, husband of Mrs. Moore, arrived in Hollister on a train from Springfield. He went to the vault and unlocked the door. 18 minutes after the three persons had been imprisoned.

The loss to the bank, which is insured at $10,000, is covered by insurance.

IMPROVEMENT INDICATED
IN MRS. HARDING'S CONDITION

By the Associated Press.
WASHINGTON, Sept. 12.—Several appearances indicate a marked improvement in Mrs. Harding's condition as can reasonably be expected, a bulletin issued at the White House shortly after 9 o'clock today.

The bulletin follows: "Mrs. Harding's condition, 8 a. m.: Temperature, 98.8; pulse, 88; respiration, 18. She had a quiet, comfortable night, sleeping longer, with less interference, swelling slowly subsiding. Several appearances indicate a marked improvement as can reasonably be expected."

The bulletin issued at 7:30 tonight said that "unless unforeseen exacerbations arise all consultants feel that the immediate crisis of illness has been passed." Dr. Chas. Mayo, who was called in consultation on the surgical aspects of the case, departed for home yesterday. Dr. Carl W. Sawyer will return Friday.
